

Issues in Economics
Today

8e

Mc
Graw
Hill
Education

Robert C. Guell

Issues in Economics Today

Eighth Edition

The McGraw-Hill Economics Series

ESSENTIALS OF ECONOMICS

Brue, McConnell, and Flynn
Essentials of Economics
Third Edition

Mandel
M: Economics, The Basics
Third Edition

Schiller and Gebhardt
Essentials of Economics
Tenth Edition

PRINCIPLES OF ECONOMICS

Asarta and Butters
Connect Master: Economics
First Edition

Colander
Economics, Microeconomics,
and Macroeconomics
Tenth Edition

Frank, Bernanke, Antonovics, and Heffetz
Principles of Economics, Principles of Microeconomics, Principles of Macroeconomics
Sixth Edition

Frank, Bernanke, Antonovics, and Heffetz
Streamlined Editions: Principles of Economics, Principles of Microeconomics, Principles of Macroeconomics
Third Edition

Karlan and Morduch
Economics, Microeconomics,
Macroeconomics
Second Edition

McConnell, Brue, and Flynn
Economics, Microeconomics,
Macroeconomics
Twenty-First Edition

Samuelson and Nordhaus
Economics, Microeconomics,
and Macroeconomics
Nineteenth Edition

Schiller and Gebhardt
The Economy Today, The Micro
Economy Today, and The Macro Economy Today
Fourteenth Edition

Slavin
Economics, Microeconomics,
and Macroeconomics
Eleventh Edition

ECONOMICS OF SOCIAL ISSUES

Guell
Issues in Economics Today
Eighth Edition

Register and Grimes
Economics of Social Issues
Twenty-First Edition

ECONOMETRICS

Gujarati and Porter
Basic Econometrics
Fifth Edition

Hilmer and Hilmer
Practical Econometrics
First Edition

MANAGERIAL ECONOMICS

Baye and Prince
Managerial Economics and Business Strategy
Ninth Edition

Brickley, Smith, and Zimmerman
Managerial Economics and Organizational Architecture
Sixth Edition

Thomas and Maurice
Managerial Economics
Twelfth Edition

INTERMEDIATE ECONOMICS

Bernheim and Whinston
Microeconomics
Second Edition

Dornbusch, Fischer, and Startz
Macroeconomics
Twelfth Edition

Frank
Microeconomics and Behavior
Ninth Edition

ADVANCED ECONOMICS

Romer
Advanced Macroeconomics
Fourth Edition

MONEY AND BANKING

Cecchetti and Schoenholtz
Money, Banking, and Financial Markets
Fifth Edition

URBAN ECONOMICS

O'Sullivan
Urban Economics
Eighth Edition

LABOR ECONOMICS

Borjas
Labor Economics
Seventh Edition

McConnell, Brue, and Macpherson
Contemporary Labor Economics
Eleventh Edition

PUBLIC FINANCE

Rosen and Gayer
Public Finance
Tenth Edition

ENVIRONMENTAL ECONOMICS

Field and Field
Environmental Economics: An Introduction
Seventh Edition

INTERNATIONAL ECONOMICS

Appleyard and Field
International Economics
Ninth Edition

Pugel
International Economics
Sixteenth Edition

Issues in Economics Today

Eighth Edition

ROBERT C. GUELL

Indiana State University

ISSUES IN ECONOMICS TODAY, EIGHTH EDITION

Published by McGraw-Hill Education, 2 Penn Plaza, New York, NY 10121. Copyright © 2018 by McGraw-Hill Education. All rights reserved. Printed in the United States of America. Previous editions © 2015, 2012, and 2010. No part of this publication may be reproduced or distributed in any form or by any means, or stored in a database or retrieval system, without the prior written consent of McGraw-Hill Education, including, but not limited to, in any network or other electronic storage or transmission, or broadcast for distance learning.

Some ancillaries, including electronic and print components, may not be available to customers outside the United States.

This book is printed on acid-free paper.

ISBN 978-1-259-74639-0

MHID 1-259-74639-9

Chief Product Officer, SVP Products & Markets: G. Scott Virkler

Vice President, General Manager, Products & Markets: Michael Ryan

Vice President, Content Production & Technology Services: Betsy Whalen

Managing Director: Susan Goujnstook

Executive Brand Manager: Katie Hoenicke

Product Developer: Jamie Koch

Editorial Coordinator: Christian Lyon

Marketing Manager: Virgil Lloyd

Marketing Coordinator: Brittany Bernholdt

Director of Digital Content Development: Douglas Ruby

Director, Content Design & Delivery: Linda Avenarius

Program Manager: Mark Christianson

Content Project Managers: Melissa M. Leick & Karen Jozefowicz

Buyer: Catt Mattura, Jolyn Thomas, Abby Davis

Design: Studio Montage, Inc.

Content Licensing Specialists: Beth Thole

Cover Image: Cala Image/Glow Images

Compositor: MPS Limited

All credits appearing on page or at the end of the book are considered to be an extension of the copyright page.

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Guell, Robert C., author.

Issues in economics today/Robert C. Guell, Indiana State University.

Eighth edition. | New York, NY : McGraw-Hill Education, [2018]

LCCN 2017003633 | ISBN 9781259746390 (alk. paper)

LCSH: Economics.

LCC HB87 .G83 2018 | DDC 330—dc23

LC record available at <https://lccn.loc.gov/2017003633>

The Internet addresses listed in the text were accurate at the time of publication. The inclusion of a website does not indicate an endorsement by the authors or McGraw-Hill Education, and McGraw-Hill Education does not guarantee the accuracy of the information presented at these sites.

To Susan, Katie, Manny, Angel, Matt, and Lilly

About the Author

Dr. Robert C. Guell (pronounced “Gill”) is a professor of economics at Indiana State University in Terre Haute, Indiana. He earned a B.A. in statistics and economics in 1986 and an M.S. in economics one year later from the University of Missouri–Columbia. In 1991, he earned a Ph.D. from Syracuse University, where he discovered the thrill of teaching. He has taught courses for freshmen, upper-division undergraduates, and graduate students from the principles level, through public finance, all the way to mathematical economics and econometrics.

Dr. Guell has published numerous peer-reviewed articles in scholarly journals. He has worked extensively in the area of pharmaceutical economics, suggesting that the private market’s patent system, while necessary for drug innovation, is unnecessary and inefficient for production.

In 1998, Dr. Guell was the youngest faculty member ever to have been given Indiana State University’s Caleb Mills Distinguished Teaching Award. His talent as a champion of quality teaching was recognized again in 2000 when he was named project manager for the Lilly Project to Transform the First-Year Experience, a Lilly Endowment–funded project to raise first-year persistence rates at Indiana State University. He was ISU’s Coordinator of First-Year Programs until January 2008, when he happily stepped aside to rejoin his department full time.

Dr. Guell’s passion for teaching economics led him to request an assignment with the largest impact. The one-semester general education basic economics course became the vehicle to express that passion. Unsatisfied with the books available for the course, he made it his calling to produce what you have before you today—an all-in-one readable issues-based text.

Brief Contents

Preface	xviii	17	International Trade: Does It Jeopardize American Jobs?	201
Issues for Different Course Themes	xxviii	18	International Finance and Exchange Rates	213
Required Theory Table	xxx	19	European Debt Crisis	222
1	Economics: The Study of Opportunity Cost	1	20	Economic Growth and Development	231
2	Supply and Demand	19	21	NAFTA, CAFTA, GATT, TPP, WTO: Are Trade Agreements Good for Us?	238
3	The Concept of Elasticity and Consumer and Producer Surplus	40	22	The Line between Legal and Illegal Goods	248
4	Firm Production, Cost, and Revenue	56	23	Natural Resources, the Environment, and Climate Change	258
5	Perfect Competition, Monopoly, and Economic versus Normal Profit	68	24	Health Care	271
6	Every Macroeconomic Word You Ever Heard: Gross Domestic Product, Inflation, Unemployment, Recession, and Depression	79	25	Government-Provided Health Insurance: Medicaid, Medicare, and the Children's Health Insurance Program	283
7	Interest Rates and Present Value	98	26	The Economics of Prescription Drugs	296
8	Aggregate Demand and Aggregate Supply	107	27	So You Want to Be a Lawyer: Economics and the Law	304
9	Fiscal Policy	119	28	The Economics of Crime	310
10	Monetary Policy	131	29	Antitrust	319
11	Federal Spending	145	30	The Economics of Race and Sex Discrimination	327
12	Federal Deficits, Surpluses, and the National Debt	155	31	Income and Wealth Inequality: What's Fair?	339
13	The Housing Bubble	168	32	Farm Policy	349
14	The Recession of 2007–2009: Causes and Policy Responses	177	33	Minimum Wage	358
15	Is Economic Stagnation the New Normal?	186	34	Ticket Brokers and Ticket Scalping	366
16	Is the (Fiscal) Sky Falling?: An Examination of Unfunded Social Security, Medicare, and State and Local Pension Liabilities	193	35	Rent Control	373
		36	The Economics of K–12 Education	379
		37	College and University Education: Why Is It So Expensive?	390

38	Poverty and Welfare	400	45	Unions	478
39	Head Start	411	46	Walmart: Always Low Prices (and Low Wages)—Always	488
40	Social Security	418	47	The Economic Impact of Casino and Sports Gambling	494
41	Personal Income Taxes	429	48	The Economics of Terrorism	499
42	Energy Prices	440		Index	505
43	If We Build It, Will They Come? And Other Sports Questions	455
44	The Stock Market and Crashes	467

Table of Contents

Preface xviii

Issues for Different Course Themes xxviii

Required Theory Table xxx

Chapter 1

Economics: The Study of Opportunity Cost 1

Economics and Opportunity Cost 1

Economics Defined 1

Choices Have Consequences 2

Modeling Opportunity Cost Using the Production Possibilities Frontier 2

The Intuition behind Our First Graph 2

The Starting Point for a Production Possibilities Frontier 3

Points between the Extremes of a Production

Possibilities Frontier 3

Attributes of the Production Possibilities Frontier 5

Increasing and Constant Opportunity Cost 5

Economic Growth 6

How Is Growth Modeled? 6

Sources of Economic Growth 7

The Big Picture 7

Circular Flow Model: A Model That Shows the

Interactions of All Economic Actors 8

Thinking Economically 8

Marginal Analysis 8

Positive and Normative Analysis 8

Economic Incentives 9

Fallacy of Composition 9

Correlation \neq Causation 10

Kick It Up a Notch: Demonstrating Constant and Increasing Opportunity Cost on a Production Possibilities Frontier 10

Demonstrating Increasing Opportunity Cost 11

Demonstrating Constant Opportunity Cost 11

Summary 11

Appendix 1A

Graphing: Yes, You Can. 15

Cartesian Coordinates 15

Please! Not $Y = MX + B$. . . Sorry. 16

What on God's Green Earth Does This Have to Do with Economics? 18

Chapter 2

Supply and Demand 19

Supply and Demand Defined 20

Markets 20

Quantity Demanded and Quantity Supplied 20

Ceteris Paribus 22

Demand and Supply 22

The Supply and Demand Model 22

Demand 22

Supply 23

Equilibrium 24

Shortages and Surpluses 25

All about Demand 25

The Law of Demand 25

Why Does the Law of Demand Make Sense? 25

All about Supply 26

The Law of Supply 26

Why Does the Law of Supply Make Sense? 26

Determinants of Demand 27

Taste 28

Income 28

Price of Other Goods 28

Population of Potential Buyers 29

Expected Price 29

Excise Taxes 29

Subsidies 29

The Effect of Changes in the Determinants of Demand on the Supply and Demand Model 29

Determinants of Supply 31

Price of Inputs 31

Technology 32

Price of Other Potential Outputs 32

Number of Sellers 32

Expected Price 32

Excise Taxes 33

Subsidies 33

The Effect of Changes in the Determinants of Supply on the Supply and Demand Model 33

The Effect of Changes in Price Expectations on the Supply and Demand Model 35

Kick It Up a Notch: Why the New Equilibrium? 35
Summary 37

Chapter 3

The Concept of Elasticity and Consumer and Producer Surplus 40

Elasticity of Demand 41

Intuition 41

Definition of Elasticity and Its Formula 41

Elasticity Labels 42

Alternative Ways to Understand Elasticity 42

The Graphical Explanation 42

The Verbal Explanation 43

Seeing Elasticity through Total Expenditures 44

More on Elasticity 44

Determinants of Elasticity of Demand 44

Elasticity and the Demand Curve 44

Elasticity of Supply 46

Determinants of the Elasticity of Supply 47

Consumer and Producer Surplus 49

Consumer Surplus 49

Producer Surplus 49

Market Failure 50

Categorizing Goods 50

Kick It Up a Notch: Deadweight Loss 51

Summary 52

Chapter 4

Firm Production, Cost, and Revenue 56

Production 57

Just Words 57

Graphical Explanation 58

Numerical Example 58

Costs 59

Just Words 59

Numerical Example 60

Revenue 62

Just Words 62

Numerical Example 63

Maximizing Profit 64

Graphical Explanation 64

Numerical Example 64

Summary 65

Chapter 5

Perfect Competition, Monopoly, and Economic versus Normal Profit 68

From Perfect Competition to Monopoly 69

Perfect Competition 69

Monopoly 70

Monopolistic Competition 70

Oligopoly 71

Which Model Fits Reality 71

Supply under Perfect Competition 73

Normal versus Economic Profit 73

When and Why Economic Profits Go to Zero 73

Why Supply Is Marginal Cost under Perfect Competition 74

Just Words 74

Numerical Example 74

Graphical Explanation 75

Summary 76

Chapter 6

Every Macroeconomic Word You Ever Heard: Gross Domestic Product, Inflation, Unemployment, Recession, and Depression 79

Measuring the Economy 80

Measuring Nominal Output 80

Measuring Prices and Inflation 81

Problems Measuring Inflation 83

Real Gross Domestic Product and Why It Is Not Synonymous with Social Welfare 86

Real Gross Domestic Product 86

Problems with Real GDP 86

Measuring and Describing Unemployment 87

Measuring Unemployment 87

Problems Measuring Unemployment 89

Types of Unemployment 90

Productivity 90

Measuring and Describing Productivity 90

Seasonal Adjustment 91

Business Cycles 92

Kick It Up a Notch: National Income and Product
Accounting 94

Summary 95

Chapter 7

Interest Rates and Present Value 98

Interest Rates 99

The Market for Money 99

Nominal Interest Rates versus Real Interest Rates 99

Present Value 100

Simple Calculations 100

Mortgages, Car Payments, and Other Multipayment

Examples 101

Future Value	102
Kick It Up a Notch: Risk and Reward	104
Summary	104

Chapter 8

Aggregate Demand and Aggregate Supply 107

Aggregate Demand	108
Definition	108
Why Aggregate Demand Is Downward Sloping	108
Aggregate Supply	109
Definition	109
Competing Views of the Shape of Aggregate Supply	109
Shifts in Aggregate Demand and Aggregate Supply	110
Variables That Shift Aggregate Demand	110
Variables That Shift Aggregate Supply	113
Causes of Inflation	114
How the Government Can Influence (but Probably Not Control) the Economy	115
Demand-Side Macroeconomics	115
Supply-Side Macroeconomics	115
Summary	116

Chapter 9

Fiscal Policy 119

Nondiscretionary and Discretionary Fiscal Policy	119
How They Work	119
Using Aggregate Supply and Aggregate Demand to Model Fiscal Policy	120
Using Fiscal Policy to Counteract “Shocks”	121
Aggregate Demand Shocks	121
Aggregate Supply Shocks	122
Evaluating Fiscal Policy	123
Nondiscretionary Fiscal Policy	123
Discretionary Fiscal Policy	123
The Political Problems with Fiscal Policy	124
Criticism from the Right and Left	125
The Rise, Fall, and Rebirth of Discretionary Fiscal Policy	125
The Obama Stimulus Plan	126
Kick It Up a Notch: Aggregate Supply Shocks	128
Summary	128

Chapter 10

Monetary Policy 131

Goals, Tools, and a Model of Monetary Policy	132
Goals of Monetary Policy	132
Traditional and Ordinary Tools of Monetary Policy	132
Modeling Monetary Policy	133
The Monetary Transmission Mechanism	134
The Additional Tools of Monetary Policy Created in 2008	135
Central Bank Independence	137
Modern Monetary Policy	138
The Last 30 Years	138
Summary	143

Chapter 11

Federal Spending 145

A Primer on the Constitution and Spending Money	146
What the Constitution Says	146
Shenanigans	146
Dealing with Disagreements	147
Using Our Understanding of Opportunity Cost	148
Mandatory versus Discretionary Spending	148
Where the Money Goes	149
Using Our Understanding of Marginal Analysis	151
The Size of the Federal Government	151
The Distribution of Federal Spending	151
Budgeting for the Future	151
Baseline versus Current-Services Budgeting	151
Summary	152

Chapter 12

Federal Deficits, Surpluses, and the National Debt 155

Surpluses, Deficits, and the Debt: Definitions and History	156
Definitions	156
History	156
How Economists See the Deficit and the Debt	159
Operating and Capital Budgets	159
Cyclical and Structural Deficits	159
The Debt as a Percentage of GDP	160
International Comparisons	160
Generational Accounting	161
Who Owns the Debt?	161
Externally Held Debt	162
A Balanced-Budget Amendment	162
Projections	165
Summary	166

Chapter 13

The Housing Bubble 168

- How Much Is a House Really Worth? 168
- Mortgages 170
- How to Make a Bubble 172
- Pop Goes the Bubble! 173
- The Effect on the Overall Economy 174
- Summary 175

Chapter 14

The Recession of 2007–2009: Causes and Policy Responses 177

- Before It Began 177
- Late 2007: The Recession Begins as Do the Initial Policy Reactions 180
- The Bottom Falls Out in Fall 2008 181
- The Obama Stimulus Package 182
- Extraordinary Monetary Stimulus 183
- Summary 184

Chapter 15

Is Economic Stagnation the New Normal? 186

- Periods of Robust Economic Growth 187
- Sources of Growth 187
- Causes and Consequences of Slowing Growth 187
 - Causes 187
 - Consequences 188
- What Can Be Done to Jump-Start Growth, or Is This the New Normal? 189
- Summary 191

Chapter 16

Is the (Fiscal) Sky Falling?: An Examination of Unfunded Social Security, Medicare, and State and Local Pension Liabilities 193

- What Is the Source of the Problem? 193
- How Big Is the Social Security and Medicare Problem? 194
- How Big Is the State and Local Pension Problem? 196
- Is It Possible That the Fiscal Sky Isn't About to Fall? 198
- Summary 199

Chapter 17

International Trade: Does It Jeopardize American Jobs? 201

- What We Trade and with Whom 201
- The Benefits of International Trade 204
 - Comparative and Absolute Advantage* 204
 - Demonstrating the Gains from Trade* 205
 - Production Possibilities Frontier Analysis* 205
 - Supply and Demand Analysis* 206
 - Whom Does Trade Harm?* 206
- Trade Barriers 207
 - Reasons for Limiting Trade* 207
 - Methods of Limiting Trade* 208
- Trade as a Diplomatic Weapon 209
- Kick It Up a Notch: Costs of Protectionism 210
- Summary 210

Chapter 18

International Finance and Exchange Rates 213

- International Financial Transactions 213
- Foreign Exchange Markets 215
- Alternative Foreign Exchange Systems 217
- Determinants of Exchange Rates 219
- Summary 220

Chapter 19

European Debt Crisis 222

- In the Beginning There Were 17 Currencies in 17 Countries 222
- The Effect of the Euro 223
- Why Couldn't They Pull Themselves Out? The United States Did 226
- Is It Too Late to Leave the Euro? 228
- Where Should Europe Go from Here? 229
- Summary 229

Chapter 20

Economic Growth and Development 231

- Growth in Already Developed Countries 231
- Comparing Developed Countries and Developing Countries 233
- Fostering (and Inhibiting) Development 234
 - The Challenges Facing Developing Countries* 235
 - What Works* 236
- Summary 236

Chapter 21NAFTA, CAFTA, GATT, TPP, WTO:
Are Trade Agreements Good for Us? 238

- The Benefits of Free Trade 239
- Why Do We Need Trade Agreements? 239
 - Strategic Trade* 240
 - Special Interests* 240
 - What Trade Agreements Prevent* 240
- Trade Agreements and Institutions 241
 - Alphabet Soup* 241
 - Are They Working?* 242
- Economic and Political Impacts of Trade 243
- The Bottom Line 245
- Summary 245

Chapter 22The Line between Legal and Illegal
Goods 248

- An Economic Model of Tobacco, Alcohol, and Illegal Goods and Services 249
- Why Is Regulation Warranted? 249
 - The Information Problem* 249
 - External Costs* 250
 - Morality Issues* 252
- Taxes on Tobacco and Alcohol 253
 - Modeling Taxes* 253
 - The Tobacco Settlement and Why Elasticity
Matters* 254
- Why Are Certain Goods and Services
Illegal? 254
 - The Impact of Decriminalization on the Market for the Goods* 254
 - The External Costs of Decriminalization* 255
- Summary 255

Chapter 23Natural Resources, the Environment, and Climate Change 258

- Using Natural Resources 259
- How Clean Is Clean Enough? 259
- The Externalities Approach 260
 - When the Market Works for Everyone* 260
 - When the Market Does Not Work for Everyone* 260
- The Property Rights Approach to the Environment and Natural Resources 262
 - Why You Do Not Mess Up Your Own Property* 262
 - Why You Do Mess Up Common Property* 262

Natural Resources and the Importance of Property Rights 262

- Environmental Problems and Their Economic Solutions 263
 - Environmental Problems* 263
 - Economic Solutions: Using Taxes to Solve
Environmental Problems* 265
 - Economic Solutions: Using Property Rights to Solve Environmental Problems* 265
 - No Solution: When There Is No Government to Tax or Regulate* 267
- Summary 268

Chapter 24Health Care 271

- Where the Money Goes and Where
It Comes From 271
- Insurance in the United States 272
 - How Insurance Works* 272
 - Varieties of Private Insurance* 273
 - Public Insurance* 273
- Economic Models of Health Care 274
 - Why Health Care Is Not Just Another Good* 274
 - Implications of Public Insurance* 275
 - Efficiency Problems with Private Insurance* 276
 - Major Changes to Insurance Resulting from PPACA* 277
 - The Blood and Organ Problem* 279
- Comparing the United States with the Rest of the World 279
- Summary 281

Chapter 25Government-Provided Health Insurance:
Medicaid, Medicare, and the Children's Health Insurance Program 283

- Medicaid: What, Who, and How Much 284
- Why Medicaid Costs So Much 285
 - Why Spending Is Greater on the Elderly* 286
 - Cost-Saving Measures in Medicaid* 287
- Medicare: Public Insurance and the Elderly 287
 - Why Private Insurance May Not Work* 287
 - Why Medicare's Costs Are High* 288
- Medicare's Nuts and Bolts 289
 - Provider Types* 289
 - Part A* 289
 - Part B* 290
 - Prescription Drug Coverage (Part D)* 290
 - Cost Control Provisions in Medicare* 291

The Medicare Trust Fund 292
The Relationship between Medicaid and Medicare 293
Children's Health Insurance Program 293
Summary 294

Chapter 26 The Economics of Prescription Drugs 296

Profiteers or Benevolent Scientists? 297
Monopoly Power Applied to Drugs 297
Important Questions 299
Expensive Necessities or Relatively Inexpensive Godsend? 299
Price Controls: Are They the Answer? 301
FDA Approval: Too Stringent or Too Lax? 301
Summary 302

Chapter 27 So You Want to Be a Lawyer: Economics and the Law 304

Private Property 304
Intellectual Property 305
Contracts 305
Enforcing Various Property Rights and Contracts 305
Negative Consequences of Private Property Rights 306
Bankruptcy 306
Civil Liability 306
Summary 308

Chapter 28 The Economics of Crime 310

Who Commits Crimes and Why 310
The Rational Criminal Model 311
Crime Falls When Legal Income Rises 311
Crime Falls When the Likelihood and Consequences of Getting Caught Rise 312
Problems with the Rationality Assumption 312
The Costs of Crime 312
How Much Does an Average Crime Cost? 313
How Much Crime Does an Average Criminal Commit? 313
Optimal Spending on Crime Control 314
What Is the Optimal Amount to Spend? 314
Is the Money Spent in the Right Way? 315
Are the Right People in Jail? 315
What Laws Should We Rigorously Enforce? 315
What Is the Optimal Sentence? 316
Summary 317

Chapter 29 Antitrust 319

What's Wrong with Monopoly? 319
High Prices, Low Output, and Deadweight Loss 319
Reduced Innovation 320
Natural Monopolies and Necessary Monopolies 320
Natural Monopoly 320
Patents, Copyrights, and Other Necessary Monopolies 321
Monopolies and the Law 322
The Sherman Anti-Trust Act 322
What Constitutes a Monopoly? 323
Examples of Antitrust Action 323
Standard Oil 323
IBM 324
Microsoft 324
Apple, Google, and the European Union 325
Summary 325

Chapter 30 The Economics of Race and Sex Discrimination 327

The Economic Status of Women and Minorities 327
Women 327
Minorities 328
Definitions and Detection of Discrimination 330
Discrimination, Definitions, and the Law 330
Detecting and Measuring Discrimination 331
Discrimination in Labor, Consumption, and Lending 332
Labor Market Discrimination 332
Consumption Market and Lending Market Discrimination 333
Affirmative Action 334
The Economics of Affirmative Action 334
What Is Affirmative Action? 335
Gradations of Affirmative Action 335
Summary 336

Chapter 31 Income and Wealth Inequality: What's Fair? 339

Measurement of Inequality 339
Income Inequality 339
Wealth Inequality 342
The Shrinking Middle Class 343

Causes of Household Income and Wealth Inequality	344
Costs and Benefits of Income Inequality	345
Summary	347

Chapter 32

Farm Policy 349

Farm Prices Since 1950	349
Corn and Gasoline	350
Price Variation as a Justification for Government Intervention	351
The Case for Price Supports	351
The Case against Price Supports	352
Consumer and Producer Surplus Analysis of Price Floors	352
One Floor in One Market	352
Variable Floors in Multiple Markets	353
What Would Happen without Price Supports?	353
Price Support Mechanisms and Their History	353
Price Support Mechanisms	353
History of Price Supports	355
Is There a Bubble on the Farm?	355
Kick It Up a Notch	356
Summary	356

Chapter 33

Minimum Wage 358

Traditional Economic Analysis of a Minimum Wage	359
Labor Markets and Consumer and Producer Surplus	359
A Relevant versus an Irrelevant Minimum Wage	360
What Is Wrong with a Minimum Wage?	361
Real-World Implications of the Minimum Wage	361
Alternatives to the Minimum Wage	362
Rebuttals to the Traditional Analysis	362
The Macroeconomics Argument	362
The Work Effort Argument	363
The Elasticity Argument	363
Where Are Economists Now?	363
Kick It Up a Notch	364
Summary	364

Chapter 34

Ticket Brokers and Ticket Scalping 366

Defining Brokering and Scalping	367
An Economic Model of Ticket Sales	367
Marginal Cost	367
The Promoter as Monopolist	367
The Perfect Arena	368

Why Promoters Charge Less Than They Could	369
An Economic Model of Scalping	369
Legitimate Scalpers	370
Summary	371

Chapter 35

Rent Control 373

Rents in a Free Market	373
Reasons for Controlling Rents	374
Consequences of Rent Control	375
Why Does Rent Control Survive?	377
Summary	378

Chapter 36

The Economics of K–12 Education 379

Investments in Human Capital	379
Present Value Analysis	380
External Benefits	380
Should We Spend More?	381
The Basic Data	381
Cautions about Quick Conclusions	383
Literature on Whether More Money Will Improve Educational Outcomes	385
School Reform Issues	385
The Public School Monopoly	385
Merit Pay and Tenure	386
Private versus Public Education	386
School Vouchers	387
Collective Bargaining	387
Summary	388

Chapter 37

College and University Education: Why Is It So Expensive? 390

Why Are the Costs So High?	390
Why Are College Costs Rising So Fast?	392
Why Have Textbook Costs Risen So Rapidly?	393
What a College Degree Is Worth	395
How Do People Pay for College?	396
Summary	398

Chapter 38

Poverty and Welfare 400

Measuring Poverty	400
The Poverty Line	401
Who's Poor?	401

Poverty through History 402
Problems with Our Measure of Poverty 403
Poverty in the United States versus Europe 404
Programs for the Poor 404
In Kind versus In Cash 404
Why Spend $789 Billion on a $96 Billion Problem? 406
Is $789 Billion Even a Lot Compared to Other Countries? 406
Incentives, Disincentives, Myths, and Truths 406
Welfare Reform 407
Is There a Solution? 407
Welfare as We Now Know It 408
Is Poverty Necessarily Bad? 408
Summary 408

Chapter 39 Head Start 411

Head Start as an Investment 411
The Early Intervention Premise 411
Present Value Analysis 412
External Benefits 412
The Early Evidence 412
The Remaining Doubts 412
The Head Start Program 413
The Current Evidence 414
Evidence that Head Start Works 414
Evidence that Head Start Does Not Work 415
More Evidence Is Coming and Some Is In 415
The Opportunity Cost of Fully Funding Head Start 416
Summary 416

Chapter 40 Social Security 418

The Basics 418
The Beginning 418
Taxes 419
Benefits 419
Changes over Time 419
Why Do We Need Social Security? 420
Social Security's Effect on the Economy 421
Effect on Work 421
Effect on Saving 421
Whom Is the Program Good For? 422
Will the System Be There for Me? 424

Why Social Security Is in Trouble 424
The Social Security Trust Fund 424
Options for Fixing Social Security 425
Summary 426

Chapter 41 Personal Income Taxes 429

How Income Taxes Work 429
Issues in Income Taxation 434
Horizontal and Vertical Equity 434
Equity versus Simplicity 434
Incentives and the Tax Code 434
Do Taxes Alter Work Decisions? 435
Do Taxes Alter Savings Decisions? 435
Taxes for Social Engineering 435
Who Pays Income Taxes? 435
The Tax Debates of the Last Two Decades 436
Summary 437

Chapter 42 Energy Prices 440

The Historical View 440
Oil and Gasoline Price History 440
Geopolitical History 441
A Return to Irrelevancy 442
OPEC 445
What OPEC Tries to Do 445
How Cartels Work 445
Why Cartels Are Not Stable 445
Back from the Dead 446
Why Do Prices Change So Fast? 446
Is It All a Conspiracy? 447
From $1 to $4 per Gallon in 10 Years? 447
Electric Utilities 449
Electricity Production 449
Why Are Electric Utilities a Regulated Monopoly? 450
What Will the Future Hold? 451
Kick It Up a Notch 452
Summary 453

Chapter 43 If We Build It, Will They Come? And Other Sports Questions 455

The Problem for Cities 455
Expansion versus Luring a Team 455
Does a Team Enhance the Local Economy? 457
Why Are Stadiums Publicly Funded? 458

The Problem for Owners	458
To Move or to Stay	458
To Win or to Profit	459
Don't Feel Sorry for Them Just Yet	460
The Sports Labor Market	461
What Owners Will Pay	461
What Players Will Accept	461
The Vocabulary of Sports Economics	461
What a Monopoly Will Do for You	464
Summary	465

Chapter 44

The Stock Market and Crashes 467

Stock Prices	468
How Stock Prices Are Determined	468
What Stock Markets Do	469
Efficient Markets	470
Stock Market Crashes	470
Bubbles	470
Example of a Crash: NASDAQ 2000	471
The Accounting Scandals of 2001 and 2002	472
Bankruptcy	473
Why Capitalism Needs Bankruptcy Laws	473
The Kmart and Global Crossing Cases	473
What Happened in the Enron Case	474
Why the Enron Case Matters More Than the Others	475
Rebound of 2006–2007 and the Drop of 2008–2009	475
Summary	476

Chapter 45

Unions 478

Why Unions Exist	478
The Perfectly Competitive Labor Market	478
A Reaction to Monopsony	479
A Way to Restrict Competition and Improve Quality	480
A Reaction to Information Issues	481
A Union as a Monopolist	481
The History of Labor Unions	482

Where Unions Go from Here	485
Kick It Up a Notch	486
Summary	486

Chapter 46

Walmart: Always Low Prices (and Low Wages)—Always 488

The Market Form	488
Who Is Affected?	490
Most Consumers Stand to Gain—Some Lose Options	490
Workers Probably Lose	491
Sales Tax Revenues Won't Be Affected Much	491
Some Businesses Will Get Hurt; Others Will Be Helped	491
Community Effects	491
Summary	492

Chapter 47

The Economic Impact of Casino and Sports Gambling 494

The Perceived Impact of Casino Gambling	494
Local Substitution	494
The “Modest” Upside of Casino Gambling	495
The Economic Reasons for Opposing Casino Gambling	495
Sports Gambling and Daily Fantasy	496
Summary	497

Chapter 48

The Economics of Terrorism 499

The Economic Impact of September 11th and of Terrorism in General	499
Modeling the Economic Impact of the Attacks	500
Insurance Aspects of Terrorism	501
Buy Insurance or Self-Protect or Both	502
Terrorism from the Perspective of the Terrorist	502
Summary	503

Index 505

Preface

This book is designed for a one-semester issues-based general education economics course, and its purpose is to interest the nonbusiness, noneconomics major in what the discipline of economics can do. Students of the “issues approach” will master the basic economic theory necessary to explore a variety of real-world issues. If this is the only economics course they ever take, they will at least gain enough insight to be able to intelligently discuss the way economic theory applies to important issues in the world today.

Until the first edition of this book was published, instructors who chose the issues approach to teaching a one-semester general economics course had to compromise in one of the following ways: they could (1) pick a book that presents the issues but that is devoid of economic theory; (2) pick a book that intertwines the issues with the theory; (3) ask students to buy two books; or (4) place a large number of readings on library reserve.

Each of these alternatives presents problems. If the course is based entirely on an issues text, students will leave with the incorrect impression that economics is a nonrigorous discipline that assumes that all of the issues are relevant to all students in the course. In fact, some issues are not relevant to some students and others are relevant only when the issue makes news. For example, at Syracuse my students never understood why farm price supports were interesting, whereas at Indiana State no student that I have met has ever lived in a rent-controlled apartment. The problem associated with using multiple books is the obvious one of expense. Having multiple reserve readings, still a legitimate option, requires a great deal of time on the part of students, teachers, and librarians and is usually not convenient to students.

The eighth edition of this book meets both student and instructor needs simultaneously. By making the entire portfolio of chapters available for instructors to select and include in a print book as they see fit within McGraw-Hill’s CREATE platform, we allow instructors maximum flexibility to design a product that keeps students interested.

HOW TO USE THIS BOOK

Issues in Economics Today includes 8 intensive core theory chapters and 40 shorter issues chapters. The book is designed to allow faculty flexibility in approach. Some colleagues like to intertwine theory and issues while others like to lay the theoretical foundation first before heading into the issues. Some faculty will choose to set a theme for their course and pick issues consistent with that theme while others will let their students decide what issues interest them. There is no right way to use the book except that under no circumstances is it imagined that the entire book be covered.

McGraw-Hill CREATE

To address the recommendation that no instructor should assign the entire book to be covered in their course, the eighth edition takes advantage of the capabilities in McGraw-Hill’s CREATE platform (www.mcgrawhillcreate.com) to give instructors the flexibility to easily design a print product customized to their issues course: instructors can easily add chapters to their product in the same way someone might add purchases to their cart when online shopping. Once the table of contents is set, the instructor can easily view the net price of their course text (often much lower once extraneous chapters have been removed). When the product is approved by the instructor, the system will generate an ISBN for the customized product, which can be provided to the bookstore. Once an order is placed, the copies will be printed on demand for each institution. The process is very straightforward; however, a McGraw-Hill representative can assist instructors or build products based on syllabi if required. This workflow makes it feasible for an instructor to revisit their product and make tweaks every time they teach the course. It also makes it a possibility for me to author and make available chapters that address current economic issues in a timely manner as events arise.

Organization of the Issues Chapters

There are 40 issues chapters that I have divided into the following categories: Macroeconomic Issues (Chapters 9–16), International Issues (Chapters 17–20), Externalities and Market Failure (Chapters 22–23), Health Issues (Chapters 24–26), Government Solutions to Societal Problems (Chapters 27–31), Price Control Issues (Chapters 32–34), and Miscellaneous Markets (Chapters 36–48). These groupings will be helpful as you navigate through the Contents looking for a particular topic. To help you decide which issues chapters to cover, see the table on pages xxx–xxxii, entitled “Required Theory Table.” It shows at a glance which theory chapters need to be covered before pursuing each of the issues chapters. On pages xxviii–xxix, the table entitled “Issues for Different Course Themes” includes my recommendations for courses that focus on social policy, international issues, election year issues, or business. Within the CREATE platform these different course structures are already assembled into ready-made Express Books to make it easy for you to customize your text according to these themes.

CHANGES TO THE EIGHTH EDITION

Due to the CREATE-delivery of the eighth edition, issues chapters that have previously been hosted on the website have now moved back within the table of contents so instructors can more easily add them to custom products. These chapters include:

- Chapter 21 NAFTA, CAFTA, GATT, WTO: Are Trade Agreements Good for Us?
- Chapter 28 Antitrust
- Chapter 35 Rent Control
- Chapter 39 Head Start
- Chapter 48 The Economics of Terrorism

Furthermore, many instructors have requested with previous editions that we provide assignable material within Connect, McGraw-Hill’s online assessment platform. We are happy to report that Connect is now available with the eighth edition including an adaptive reading experience, assignable homework (with additional quantitative and graphing problems beyond what is found at the end of each chapter), test bank content, and a host of instructor resources. For more information, please review the Connect portion of this preface.

Chapter 1: An entire section has been added on modeling economic growth using a production possibilities frontier. Both generalized and specialized growth are depicted in both a world of increasing and constant opportunity cost. In addition, the sources of economic growth are explicated.

Chapter 2: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available.

Chapter 3: Added to the discussion of substitutes by describing the inclination to use goods already in our possession longer when newer substitutes increase in price. Added an entire section on the determinants of elasticity of supply. Added a description of network goods.

Chapter 5: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. Textbox added to illustrate the importance of exit and entry using oil drilling.

Chapter 6: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. Added textbox that answers frequently asked questions regarding how particular situations (products made in one year and sold in the next, used cars, equities, and illegal drugs) are handled in GDP accounting.

Chapters 7–9: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available.

Chapter 10: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. Added a section that described the monetary policies of other countries and how the unprecedented actions of the Federal Reserve can be undone when the times comes to do so.

Chapter 11: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available.

Chapter 12: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. Added World Bank measures of debt-to-GDP measures.

Chapter 13: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. Added a comparison of home affordability in 2006 vs. 2015 for selected major markets.

Chapter 14: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available.

Chapter 15: The chapter reshapes the “Japan” chapter from the previous edition to take on the broader question of economic stagnation in the U.S. and other western economies.

Chapter 16: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. Extensively revised the section on state and local pension problems using updated information. Focused particular attention on the intractability of the pension problem in Illinois.

Chapters 17–18: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available.

Chapter 19: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. Reference made to ECB stimulus and to Brexit.

Chapter 20: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available.

Chapter 21: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. References also made to the Trans-Pacific Partnership.

Chapter 22: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. The impact of the availability of e-cigarettes as substitutes for tobacco is discussed, particularly as it relates to tobacco elasticity.

Chapter 23: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. The responsiveness of average temperatures to changes in CO₂ concentrations is also discussed in the context of climate change.

Chapter 24: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. Clarifications are included regarding the impact of the PPACA on Medicaid expansions. International comparisons for five-year survival rates of various cancers are included.

Chapter 25: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. The Congressional action to address the perpetual “Docfix” is discussed.

Chapter 26: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. Issues involving expensive life-saving drugs (Harvoni, Vivitrol, etc.) and their coverage (or lack thereof) by Medicaid are discussed.

Chapter 27: A discussion of class-action lawsuits and the example of Takata airbags was inserted.

Chapter 28: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. Significant modifications to the impact of various crime policies on crime was added stemming from a Brennan Center for Justice report that showed diminishing returns to increasing levels of incarceration.

Chapter 29: A discussion of the Apple and Google cases before the EU anti-trust agencies was included.

Chapter 30: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available.

Chapter 31: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. A Pew Charitable Trusts monograph on the state of the middle class is examined. A discussion regarding the economic and political consequences of the shrinking middle class is offered.

Chapter 32: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available.

Chapter 33: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. The textbox on state and local minimum wage statutes is completely redone. The difference, in terms of consequences, between modest and large increases in the minimum wage are examined in the context of efforts to raise wages to $15/hr.

Chapter 34: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. The secondary market for tickets is examined through the examples of StubHub, Ticketmaster, and NFL Ticket Exchange.

Chapter 35: No substantive changes.

Chapter 36: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. A discussion of the decline in inflation-adjusted K–12 per-student spending is offered.

Chapter 37: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. Notes drawing attention to the fact that tuition increases at state institutions or higher education have slowed at the same time that state subsidies to those schools have also decreased. Attention is also drawn to the fact that young adults in the United States are now no longer the likeliest to have a college education. In fact, the United States is now eighth on that list.

Chapters 38–40: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available.

Chapter 41: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. The reform of the AMT is discussed.

Chapter 42: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. Hydraulic Fracturing and directional drilling and the impact of these technologies on the elasticity of supply of crude oil are examined. The impact of these technologies and the increase in U.S. capabilities on OPEC are discussed. Data shows the link between U.S. rig counts and prices is displayed.

Chapter 43: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. The relocation of the Rams to L.A. is discussed. The fact that fewer constraints on soccer talent exist is related to the dominating position of Spain’s Barcelona and Real Madrid and the Premier League’s top five teams.

Chapters 44–46: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available.

Chapter 47: Content and data updates have been made as needed to reflect the most current information available. Daily Fantasy gambling is discussed.

Chapter 48: More recent terror attacks in France, Belgium, and San Bernardino included.

FEATURES

- A conversational writing style makes it easier for students not majoring in economics to connect with the material. The book puts students at ease and allows them to feel more confident and open to learning.
- Chapter Outline and Learning Objectives set the stage at the beginning of each chapter to let the student see how the chapter is organized and anticipate the concepts that will be covered.
- Key Terms are defined in the margins and recapped at the end of the chapters.
- Summaries at the end of each chapter reinforce the material that has been covered.
- Issues Chapters You Are Ready for Now are found at the end of each theory chapter, so students can go straight to the issues chapters that interest them once they’ve mastered the necessary theoretical principles.
- Quiz Yourself presents questions for self-quizzing at the end of each chapter.
- Think about This asks provocative questions that encourage students to think about how economic theories apply to the real world by putting themselves in the economic driver’s seat. For example, one Think about This asks, “Suppose you buy a new car. What is the opportunity cost of doing so?” This feature facilitates active learning so that the students will learn the concepts more thoroughly.
- Talk about This includes questions designed to trigger discussion.
- For More Insight See sends the students to websites and publications to find additional material on a given topic. Since economic issues are particularly time-sensitive, this feature not only helps students learn to do research on the web but also keeps the course as fresh and current as today's newspaper.

- Short Answer Questions are included so that faculty may ask students questions that will help faculty assess student understanding of complex economic phenomena.

RESOURCES TO SUPPORT LEARNING

The content and reliability of supplements is of primary importance to the users of the book. Because of this, I am personally involved in crafting and checking all of the following ancillaries, which are available for quick download and convenient access via the instructor resource material available through Connect.

Instructor's Manual

In addition to a traditional outline of each chapter's content and updated we references to data sources for each chapter, the Instructor's Manual offers key-point icons to emphasize the importance of particular concepts. Another distinctive feature is that each figure is broken into subfigures with explanations that can be offered at each stage. Solutions to the end of chapter questions are also provided.

Test Bank

The test bank includes 80–200 multiple-choice questions for the core theory chapters and 60–100 multiple-choice questions for the issues chapters. These questions test students' knowledge of key terms, key concepts, theory and graph recognition, theory and graph application, and numeracy, as well as questions about different explanations given by economists regarding particular economic phenomena.

Computerized Test Bank

TestGen is a complete, state-of-the-art test generator and editing application software that allows instructors to quickly and easily select test items from McGraw-Hill's test bank content. The instructors can then organize, edit, and customize questions and answers to rapidly generate tests for paper or online administration. Questions can include stylized text, symbols, graphics, and equations that are inserted directly into questions using built-in mathematical templates. TestGen's random generator provides the option to display different text or calculated number values each time questions are used. With both quick-and-simple test creation and flexible and robust editing tools, TestGen is a complete test generator system for today's educators.

PowerPoint Presentations

An extensive set of editable PowerPoint slides accompany the text to support instructor lectures.

Assurance of Learning Ready

Many education institutions today are focused on the notion of assurance of learning, an important element of some accreditation standards. Issues in Economics Today supports assurance of learning objectives with a simple, yet powerful solution.

Instructors can use Connect to easily query for learning outcomes/objectives that directly relate to the learning objectives of the course. You can then use the reporting features of Connect to aggregate student results in similar fashion, making the collection and presentation of assurance of learning data simple and easy.

©Getty Images/iStockphoto

McGraw-Hill Connect[®] Learn Without Limits

Connect is a teaching and learning platform that is proven to deliver better results for students and instructors.

Connect empowers students by continually adapting to deliver precisely what they need, when they need it, and how they need it, so your class time is more engaging and effective.

73% of instructors who use Connect require it; instructor satisfaction increases by 28% when Connect is required.

Connect's Impact on Retention Rates, Pass Rates, and Average Exam Scores

Using Connect improves retention rates by 19.8%, passing rates by 12.7%, and exam scores by 9.1%.

Analytics

Connect Insight[®]

Connect Insight is Connect's new one-of-a-kind visual analytics dashboard that provides at-a-glance information regarding student performance, which is immediately actionable. By presenting assignment, assessment, and topical performance results together with a time metric that is easily visible for aggregate or individual results, Connect Insight gives the user the ability to take a just-in-time approach to teaching and learning, which was never before available. Connect Insight presents data that helps instructors improve class performance in a way that is efficient and effective.

Impact on Final Course Grade Distribution

Adaptive

THE ADAPTIVE READING EXPERIENCE DESIGNED TO TRANSFORM THE WAY STUDENTS READ

More students earn A's and B's when they use McGraw-Hill Education Adaptive products.

SmartBook®

Proven to help students improve grades and study more efficiently, SmartBook contains the same content within the print book, but actively tailors that content to the needs of the individual. SmartBook's adaptive technology provides precise, personalized instruction on what the student should do next, guiding the student to master and remember key concepts, targeting gaps in knowledge and offering customized feedback, and driving the student toward comprehension and retention of the subject matter. Available on tablets, SmartBook puts learning at the student's fingertips—anywhere, anytime.

Over 8 billion questions have been answered, making McGraw-Hill Education products more intelligent, reliable, and precise.

www.mheducation.com

STUDENTS WANT

McGraw-Hill Education SMARTBOOK®

of students reported SmartBook to be a more effective way of reading material.

of students want to use the Practice Quiz feature available within SmartBook to help them study.

of students reported having reliable access to off-campus wifi.

of students say they would purchase SmartBook over print alone.

of students reported that SmartBook would impact their study skills in a positive way.

Mc
Graw
Hill
Education

*Findings based on 2015 focus group results administered by McGraw-Hill Education

AACSB Statement

McGraw-Hill Global Education is a product corporate member of AACSB International. Understanding the importance and value of AACSB accreditation, Issues in Economics Today has sought to recognize the curricula guidelines detailed in the AACSB standards for business accreditation by connecting questions in the test bank and end-of-chapter material to the general knowledge and skill guidelines found in the AACSB standards.

It is important to note that the statements contained in Issues in Economics Today are provided only as a guide for the users of this text. The AACSB leaves content coverage and assessment within the purview of individual schools, the mission of the school, and the faculty. While Issues in Economics Today and the teaching package make no claim of any specific AACSB qualification or evaluation, we have labeled questions according to the general knowledge and skill areas.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This text would not have been possible but for the efforts of a number of people. I thank Indiana State University and its Department of Economics for their continued support of this project. In particular, I thank my chair, John Conant, for his unflinching support, both moral and material. I am indebted to the personnel of McGraw-Hill Education for their work in gathering and compiling peer reviews. Katie Hoenicke, Senior Brand Manager, Jamie Koch, Product Developer, and Christina Kouvelis, Senior Product Developer, were always encouraging and willing to help at every stage. Finally, I want to thank Kelsey Darin. Kelsey, an undergraduate student at Indiana State, spent countless hours updating each data reference, table, and graph. Her careful and unending attention to detail helped me put together this edition in a way that I will be relying upon for editions to come. She cheerfully completed each task at a time when the University (almost inexplicably) assigned me to chair a department in another college. I will forever be in her debt.

I thank the many participants in McGraw-Hill Symposia who happily offered great insight on the best way to teach interesting issues. Finally, I thank the following peer reviewers whose insight substantially enhanced this book:

Alex Aichinger
Northwestern State University

Thomas Andrews
West Chester University

Michael Araujo
Quinsigamond Community College

Lee Ash
Skagit Valley College

Robert J. Bartelli
Labette Community College

Daria J. Bernard
University of Delaware

Roberta Biby
Grand Valley State University

Ann Marie Callahan
Caldwell College

R. Edward Chatterton
Lock Haven University

Russ Cheatham
Cumberland University

Joab Corey
Florida State University

Ann M. Eike
University of Kentucky

Herb Elliott
All Hancock College

John A. Flanders
Central Methodist University

Holly Fretwell
Montana State University

Neil Garston
CSULA

- E. B. Gendel
Woodbury College
- Glenn Graham
SUNY–Oswego
- Abbas P. Grammy
California State University, Bakersfield
- Sheryl Hadley
Johnson Community College
- Suzanne Hayes
University of Nebraska, Kearney
- Rolf Hemmerling
Greenville Technical College
- John S. Heywood
University of Wisconsin–Milwaukee
- Richard Hoogerwerf
Marian College
- Scott Hunt
Columbus State Community College
- Hans Isakson
University of Northern Iowa
- Debra Israel
Indiana State University
- Allan Jenkins
University of Nebraska, Kearney
- Dick Johnson
Skagit Valley Community College
- Gary Langer
Roosevelt University
- Tom Larson
California State University–Los Angeles
- Raymond Lee
Benedict College
- Gary D. Lemon
DePauw University
- Alston Lippert
University of South Carolina
- Patrick McMurry
Missouri Western State University
- Tom Means
San Jose State University
- Kimberly Merritt
Oklahoma Christian University
- Daniel Morvey
Piedmont Technical College
- Richard Newton
Augusta Technical College
- Inge O’Connor
Syracuse University
- Nathan Perry
University of Utah
- Chris Phillips
Somerset Community College
- Patrick Price
University of Louisiana at Lafayette
- Taghi Ramin
William Patterson University
- Michael Ryan
Western Michigan University
- John Sabelhaus
University of Maryland
- Sue Lynn Sasser
University of Central Oklahoma
- Brenda M. Saunders
Somerset Community College
- Robert D. Schuttler
Marian University
- Millicent M. Sites
Carson–Newman College
- Rebecca Smith
Mississippi State University
- Arun K. Srinivasan
Indiana University Southeast
- Frank Tenkorang
University of Nebraska, Kearney
- Tara Thornberry
Maysville Community and Technical College
- Michelle Villinski
DePauw University
- Darlene Voeltz
Rochester Community and Technical College
- William Walsh
University of St. Thomas
- Wendel Weaver
Oklahoma Wesleyan University
- Janet L. Wolcutt
Wichita State University
- Derek K. Yonai
Campbell University
- Ben Young
University of Missouri, Kansas City
Johnson County Community College

Issues for Different Course Themes

Social Policy

- 22. The Line between Legal and Illegal Goods
- 24. Health Care
- 25. Government-Provided Health Insurance: Medicaid, Medicare, and the Children's Health Insurance Program
- 26. The Economics of Prescription Drugs
- 30. The Economics of Race and Sex Discrimination
- 31. Income and Wealth Inequality: What's Fair?
- 33. Minimum Wage
- 36. The Economics of K–12 Education
- 37. College and University Education: Why Is It So Expensive?
- 38. Poverty and Welfare
- 47. The Economic Impact of Casino and Sports Gambling

Election Year

- 9. Fiscal Policy
- 11. Federal Spending
- 14. The Recession of 2007–2009: Causes and Policy Responses
- 15. Is Economic Stagnation the New Normal?
- 16. Is the (Fiscal) Sky Falling? An Examination of Unfunded Social Security, Medicare, and State and Local Pension Liabilities
- 17. International Trade: Does It Jeopardize American Jobs?
- 23. Natural Resources, the Environment, and Climate Change
- 24. Health Care
- 27. So You Want to Be a Lawyer: Economics and the Law
- 28. The Economics of Crime
- 30. The Economics of Race and Sex Discrimination
- 33. Minimum Wage

- 37. College and University Education: Why Is It So Expensive?
- 40. Social Security

International Issues

- 12. Federal Deficits, Surpluses, and the National Debt
- 15. Is Economic Stagnation the New Normal?
- 17. International Trade: Does It Jeopardize American Jobs?
- 18. International Finance and Exchange Rates
- 19. European Debt Crisis
- 20. Economic Growth and Development
- 22. The Line between Legal and Illegal Goods
- 23. Natural Resources, the Environment, and Climate Change
- 32. Farm Policy
- 42. Energy Prices

Business Issues

- 10. Monetary Policy
- 11. Federal Spending
- 13. The Housing Bubble
- 14. The Recession of 2007–2009: Causes and Policy Responses
- 17. International Trade: Does It Jeopardize American Jobs?
- 24. Health Care
- 26. The Economics of Prescription Drugs
- 34. Ticket Brokers and Ticket Scalping
- 41. Personal Income Taxes
- 42. Energy Prices
- 44. The Stock Market and Crashes
- 45. Unions
- 46. Walmart: Always Low Prices (and Low Wages)—Always

Social Justice

14. The Recession of 2007–2009: Causes and Policy Responses
15. Is Economic Stagnation the New Normal?
23. Natural Resources, the Environment, and Climate Change
24. Health Care
25. Government-Provided Health Insurance: Medicaid, Medicare, and the Children’s Health Insurance Program
26. The Economics of Prescription Drugs
30. The Economics of Race and Sex Discrimination
31. Income and Wealth Inequality: What’s Fair?
33. Minimum Wage
35. Rent Control
36. The Economics of K–12 Education
37. College and University Education: Why Is It So Expensive?
38. Poverty and Welfare
39. Head Start
40. Social Security
25. Government-Provided Health Insurance: Medicaid, Medicare, and the Children’s Health Insurance Program
26. The Economics of Prescription Drugs
30. The Economics of Race and Sex Discrimination
31. Income and Wealth Inequality: What’s Fair?
36. The Economics of K–12 Education
37. College and University Education: Why Is It So Expensive?
38. Poverty and Welfare
39. Head Start
40. Social Security

Health and Education Policies

11. Federal Spending
16. Is the (Fiscal) Sky Falling?: An Examination of Unfunded Social Security, Medicare, and State and Local Pension Liabilities
23. Natural Resources, the Environment, and Climate Change
24. Health Care

The Most Popular Issues Chosen by Students

14. The Recession of 2007–2009: Causes and Policy Responses
17. International Trade: Does It Jeopardize American Jobs?
22. The Line between Legal and Illegal Goods
23. Natural Resources, the Environment, and Climate Change
24. Health Care
28. The Economics of Crime
30. The Economics of Race and Sex Discrimination
33. Minimum Wage
42. Energy Prices
43. If We Build It, Will They Come? and Other Sports Questions
44. The Stock Market and Crashes
47. The Economic Impact of Casino and Sports Gambling

Required Theory Table

Core Theory Required
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
					X	X	X	9. Fiscal Policy
					X	X	X	10. Monetary Policy
X								11. Federal Spending
					X		X	12. Federal Deficits, Surpluses, and the National Debt
					X	X	X	13. The Housing Bubble
					X	X	X	14. The Recession of 2007–2009: Causes and Policy Responses
					X	X	X	15. Is Economic Stagnation the New Normal?
					X	X	X	16. Is the (Fiscal) Sky Falling?: An Examination of Unfunded Social Security, Medicare, and State and Local Pension Liabilities
X	X	X						17. International Trade: Does It Jeopardize American Jobs?
	X							18. International Finance and Exchange Rates
X	X				X	X	X	19. European Debt Crisis
	X				X		X	20. Economic Growth and Development
X	X	X						21. NAFTA, CAFTA, GATT, TPP, WTO: Are Trade Agreements Good for Us?
X	X	X						22. The Line between Legal and Illegal Goods
X	X	X	X	X		X		23. Natural Resources, the Environment, and Climate Change
X	X	X						24. Health Care
X	X	X						25. Government-Provided Health Insurance: Medicaid, Medicare, and the Children's Health Insurance Program
X	X	X	X	X				26. The Economics of Prescription Drugs
X	X	X					X	27. So You Want to Be a Lawyer: Economics and the Law
X	X	X						28. The Economics of Crime
	X	X	X	X				29. Antitrust
	X							30. The Economics of Race and Sex Discrimination
X	X					X		31. Income and Wealth Inequality: What's Fair?
X	X	X						32. Farm Policy
X	X	X						33. Minimum Wage
	X	X		X				34. Ticket Brokers and Ticket Scalping
	X	X						35. Rent Control
X						X		36. The Economics of K–12 Education
X	X	X	X	X		X		37. College and University Education: Why Is It So Expensive?
X								38. Poverty and Welfare
X						X		39. Head Start
						X		40. Social Security

Core Theory Required
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
						X		41. Personal Income Taxes
	X	X	X					42. Energy Prices
X						X		43. If We Build It, Will They Come? And Other Sports Questions
						X		44. The Stock Market and Crashes
	X	X	X	X				45. Unions
X	X	X	X	X				46. Walmart: Always Low Prices (and Low Wages)—Always
X					X	X	X	47. The Economic Impact of Casino and Sports Gambling
X								48. The Economics of Terrorism

This page intentionally left blank

Economics: The Study of Opportunity Cost

Learning Objectives

After reading this chapter you should be able to:

- LO1 Define the key terms of economics and opportunity cost and understand how a production possibilities frontier exemplifies the trade-offs that exist in life.
- LO2 Distinguish between increasing and constant opportunity cost and understand why each might happen in the real world.
- LO3 Analyze an argument by thinking economically, while recognizing and avoiding logical traps.

Chapter Outline

- Economics and Opportunity Cost
- Modeling Opportunity Cost Using the Production Possibilities Frontier
- Attributes of the Production Possibilities Frontier
- Economic Growth
- The Big Picture
- Thinking Economically
- Kick It Up a Notch: Demonstrating Constant and Increasing Opportunity Cost on a Production Possibilities Frontier
- Summary

This chapter lays the foundation for understanding how to think like an economist. It begins by defining the discipline of economics and its most basic concept: opportunity cost. Opportunity cost is modeled and further explained through the use of a diagram called a production possibilities frontier. A road map to the economy and to the remainder of the book is presented in the form of a circular flow diagram. The chapter continues with a discussion of what “thinking economically” means. To understand this concept, we look at why economists use marginal analysis, explore the difference between positive and normative analysis, and examine economic incentives. We conclude by examining logical traps that obstruct our path to such economic thinking.

Economics and Opportunity Cost

economics

The study of the allocation and use of scarce resources to satisfy unlimited human wants.

Economics Defined

Some define economics as a hard requirement for general education or a major; others, a “dismal science”; and still others, the study of the allocation and use of scarce resources to satisfy unlimited human wants. The reality is that economics is all three. It deserves its reputation as a difficult course, its practitioners are always disappointing the public by insisting that there is a cost to everything, and it really is a social science dealing with the fact that humans want more than resources are capable of satisfying.

On another level, the study of economics is the application of complicated jargon and graphs to common sense. You already know a lot of economics. You know, for instance, that choices have consequences; that having more money is more fun than having less; and that even though you are rich relative to a starving refugee, you are less rich than you would like to be. Of course, there are many other economic lessons that you learn simply by being alive. What you do not have is a systematic way of thinking about those economic ideas, and that is what this course and this book provide.

In this book all jargon with special meaning to economists will be in bold, with its definition, sometimes also in jargon, close by in the text as well as in the margin. If the definition is in “econ-speak” rather than commonsense English, you will also find an English translation nearby. Two terms in our definition of economics need clarification because they have special meaning to economists. First, you find the word scarce. Something is scarce when there is not a freely available and infinite source of it. Second, a resource is anything we either consume directly or use to make things that we will ultimately consume.

scarce

Not freely available and lacking an infinite source.

resource

Anything that is consumed directly or used to make things that will ultimately be consumed.

There are four basic resources that society can allocate: land, labor, capital, and the entrepreneurship of its people. Any other resource, like oil, steel, or corn, is made available to a society when it allocates one or more of the basic resources to uncover, create, or harvest it.

Choices Have Consequences

In this course and with this book you will be faced with a choice: Do you read and study, or do you sleep and party? This choice illustrates the first and most basic concept of economics: opportunity cost. Opportunity cost is the forgone alternative of the choice made.

opportunity cost

The forgone alternative of the choice made.

Translated into English, opportunity cost is “what you would have done had you not done what you did.” It is important to keep in mind that the “forgone alternative” is the next best choice. It is not all the things “you could have done had you not done what you did,” but it is the best of these alternatives because presumably that is “what you would have done.”

If, for example, you decide at some point before finishing your assigned reading to put down this book, you will be implicitly saying that you would rather do something other than read this book. In terms of the course you are taking, the “opportunity cost” of such a poor decision could well be the lower grade that results from lost understanding.

production

possibilities frontier

A graph that relates the amounts of different goods that can be produced in a fully employed society.

Unfortunately, no matter what you do, you cannot escape opportunity cost. If you stay responsible and continue to read your text, the opportunity cost would be what you would do with the time saved. You are giving up the opportunity to watch something on Netflix, play the latest Call of Duty, Halo, or Assassin’s Creed game, sleep, or study something else. To you, the preferred one of these would be the opportunity cost of reading the text.

model

A simplification of the real world that can be manipulated to explain the real world.

As an aside, professors today see many students trying to avoid opportunity cost by multi-tasking. Scanning your Facebook account, reading your English, texting your significant other, or studying your biology during your economics class may seem like you are simply using time that has no opportunity cost. It is not. Students who attempt it frequently miss details, instructions, or concepts when they are only partially tuned in. The opportunity cost of the multi-tasking attempt is the lost understanding that could have been gained had you focused your attention in class.

Modeling Opportunity Cost Using the Production Possibilities Frontier

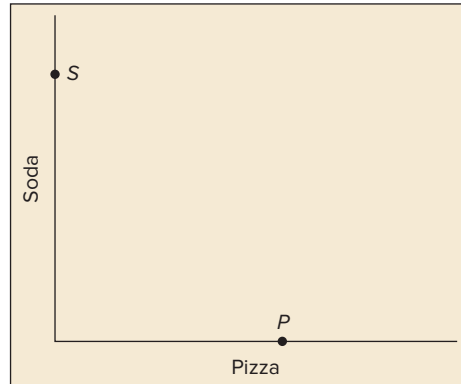

The Intuition behind Our First Graph

The concept of opportunity cost can be further illustrated by looking at something called a production possibilities frontier. This graph, Figure 1.1, is the first of more than 100 that you will see in this book. It is an example of a model, a simplification of the real world that we

FIGURE 1.1
Production possibilities frontier: the starting point.

simplifying assumption

An assumption that may, on its face, be silly but allows for a clearer explanation.

can manipulate to explain the real world. This particular one relates the amounts of different goods that can be produced in a fully employed society.

Because chalkboards and book pages have only two dimensions, our explanation is limited. This gives us the first opportunity to introduce something called a simplifying assumption. A simplifying assumption is one that may, on its face, be silly but allows for a clearer explanation. A good one also has the characteristic that the conclusions that spring from it are valid in its more complicated scenario. For our production possibilities frontier we will make several simplifying assumptions. We will assume that there are only two goods in the world, that these goods are pizza and soft drinks, and that these goods will be produced with a fixed number of resources and fixed technology.

For another simplification, suppose that there are five types of people in the world: (1) those really good at producing pizza but lousy at producing soda; (2) those pretty good at producing pizza and not so good at producing soda; (3) those sort of OK at both; (4) those good at producing soda and not so good at producing pizza; and (5) those really good at producing soda but lousy at producing pizza.

The Starting Point for a Production Possibilities Frontier

If we imagine that our resource is the time of our workers, it can be consumed directly in the form of their leisure or it can be combined with other resources to produce goods and services. This resource is also scarce because there is not an infinite number of people to work, those people can do only so much work, they will not work without being paid, and there is only so much soda that can be produced—even if all the people on the planet devote their lives to the production of soda. Of course this point also holds if we apply the scarce resource to the production of pizza. There is only so much pizza that can be produced even if everyone on the planet is producing pizza. This notion of scarcity gives us a starting point and an ending point for Figure 1.1.

Point S in Figure 1.1 represents the situation where all resources are devoted to the production of soda; point P represents the situation where all resources are devoted to the production of pizza. In both cases all the resources in the world are devoted to the production of a specific good and production is still limited. It is limited by the ability of people and by the number of people and machines we have to help those people do their jobs. So that it is clear, remember that the production possibilities frontier is giving us a series of choices. We can pick only one of them. We cannot have both S sodas and P pizzas; thus, it is an either–or situation.

Points between the Extremes of a Production Possibilities Frontier

We can have some soda and some pizza, so many points between S and P are possible; we need to determine them. To proceed, assume you want something to eat with your soda, and ask yourself what kind of people you would remove from soda production to foster pizza production. Clearly, you would remove those who are not contributing much to the soda production but would contribute greatly to pizza production. That is, those with the attributes of people in group 1 above: really good at pizza, lousy at soda.

Figure 1.2 shows us what happens if we go ahead and move that group. As you see, this increases pizza production to a respectable level while not costing society much soda. Point X in Figure 1.2 represents that new soda–pizza combination. There everyone except those whom we will call the “pizza chefs” are still making soda, and the pizza chefs are efficiently cranking out as many pizzas as they can on their own. The thing is, though we gained a great deal of pizza production, we lost some soda production. That’s why point X, while to the right of point S, is also lower than point S.

FIGURE 1.2 Production possibilities frontier: moving pizza chefs to their rightful place.

FIGURE 1.3 Production possibilities frontier: moving to even more pizza production.

If we continue this process further, we are not blessed with a similar effect. The reason is that if we move toward greater pizza production, we do not have those pizza chefs to call on; instead we have our group 2, who are pretty good at pizza and not so good at soda. What that means is that even though pizza production rises, it does not rise as much as it did before. On top of that, our soda production falls more than it had before because when we moved the pizza chefs, they were “lousy” at soda. Now we are moving workers who are simply not so good at soda. Our soda losses are growing at an increasing rate. Thus we have point Y in Figure 1.3.

Going further, point M in Figure 1.4 results from moving the workers from group 3 (OK at both) from soda to pizza, point Z results from moving group 4 workers to pizza, and point P results from moving group 5 workers to pizza.

Connecting points like this creates Figure 1.5: a production possibilities frontier. This curve represents the most pizza that can be produced for any given amount of soda or, interpreted differently, the most soda that can be produced for any given amount of pizza.

FIGURE 1.4 All points on a production possibilities frontier.

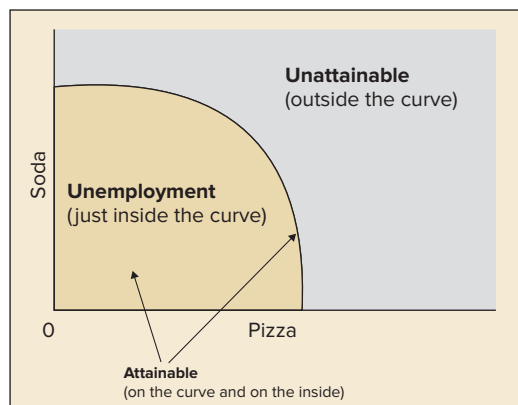

FIGURE 1.5 A fully labeled production possibilities frontier: the case when people are different.

Attributes of the Production Possibilities Frontier

unemployment

A situation that occurs when resources are not being fully utilized.

attainable

Levels of production that are possible with the given resources.

unattainable

Levels of production that are not possible with the given resources.

Of course, if you can produce on the curve, you can produce less than that as well. If you do produce at points inside a production possibilities frontier, there are unemployed resources, or unemployment for short. Therefore, all points on or inside the production possibilities frontier are attainable.

Conversely, since the production possibilities frontier represents the maximum amount of one good that you can produce for a given level of production of another, those points outside the production possibilities frontier are unattainable. This means that currently available resources and technology are insufficient to produce amounts greater than those illustrated on the frontier. On the graph, everything beyond the frontier is unattainable.

The preceding discussion illustrates something you need to be wary of in this book. Words you think you know may mean something entirely different to economists. Thus far we have at least three such words: unemployment, frontier, and good. You think of unemployment as the condition of someone wanting a job but not having one. Economists do not disagree but expand that definition to resources other than labor. For example, on the interior of the production possibilities frontier there is unemployment, but that unemployment may be of capital. The word frontier is used to describe the boundary of production, not a wooded area with bears to avoid. The word good, to an economist, is a generic term for anything we consume. In the example, soda and pizza are goods.

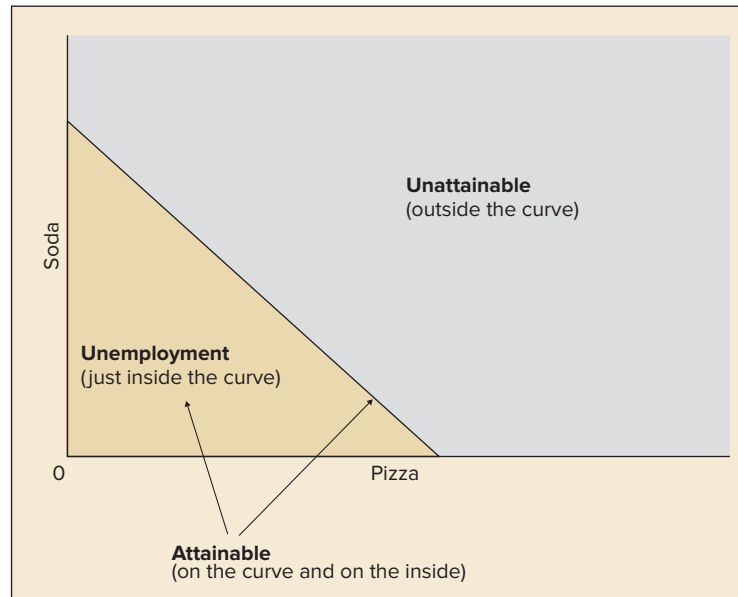

In the soda and pizza example there were people of different talents at soda and pizza production. The pizza chef had far different skills from the soda master. If, on the other hand, everyone were identical in their soda and pizza production capabilities, then points would fall on the line, as seen in Figure 1.6.

Increasing and Constant Opportunity Cost

Figures 1.5 and 1.6 have important similarities and differences. In both, the points on the production possibilities frontier are the most of one good that can be produced for a given amount of the other good. In both, the points on the curve and inside it are attainable and those on the outside of it are unattainable. In both, the opportunity cost of moving from one point to another is the amount of one good you have to give up to get another. They differ in one important way, however: whether opportunity cost is increasing or constant.

FIGURE 1.6

A fully labeled production possibilities frontier: the case when people are the same.

If the production possibilities frontier is not a line but is bowed out away from the origin, then opportunity cost is increasing. The reason for this is that as we add more resources to the production of pizza, we are using fewer resources to produce soda. Compounding that problem, at each stage as we take the resources away from soda and put them into pizza, we are moving workers who are worse at pizza production and better at soda production than those moved in the previous stage. This means that the increase in pizza production is diminishing and the loss in soda production is increasing. An economist would call this an example of increasing opportunity cost.

If the production possibilities frontier is a straight line that is not bowed out away from the origin, then opportunity cost is constant. If every worker possesses identical skill, though you still have to give up some soda to get pizza, this is not compounded by anything. The resources you put into producing more pizza are just as good as the resources used to get you to that point, and the resources taken away from the soda are similarly just as good as the resources used up to that point. An economist would call this an example of constant opportunity cost.

Economic Growth

How Is Growth Modeled?

We can use the production possibilities frontier to model economic growth. In the top-left frame of Figure 1.7 we see what happens when there is increasing opportunity cost between pizza and soda, and a new process allows more soda to be produced from the same resources when that process doesn't apply to pizza. In the top-center frame the reverse is true: Technological progress allows for greater pizza production but doesn't impact soda. The bottom-left and bottom-center frames show the same thing when there is constant opportunity cost. These four cases show the result of specialized growth, where there is an increase in the ability to produce a particular good because there is an increase in, or an increase in the ability of, resources to produce a particular good that does not generalize to other goods.

When there is generalized growth, that is typically the result of an increase in, or an increase in the ability of, resources to produce all goods. Generalized growth is depicted on the top-right and lower-right frames of Figure 1.7 for when there is increasing and constant opportunity cost, respectively.

FIGURE 1.7
Modeling Economic Growth.

Sources of Economic Growth

In terms of productive capacity of a society, economic growth results from either an increase in the availability of resources or an increase in the ability of resources to produce goods and services. In the first case, a newly discovered source of energy, or a source of energy that had, under previous technology, not been exploitable would constitute a newly available resource. Reaching not that far back in our history, having women enter the labor force in large numbers during the 1960s through the 1990s increased the availability of labor. In the second case, sometimes the resources remain the same but the ability to utilize them to produce goods and services increases. For instance, when computers and lasers are added to saw mills, the same logs, saw blades, and labor can produce more lumber. That is, technology makes resources more productive. Similarly, education makes labor more productive and can be a source of generalized growth in capacity.

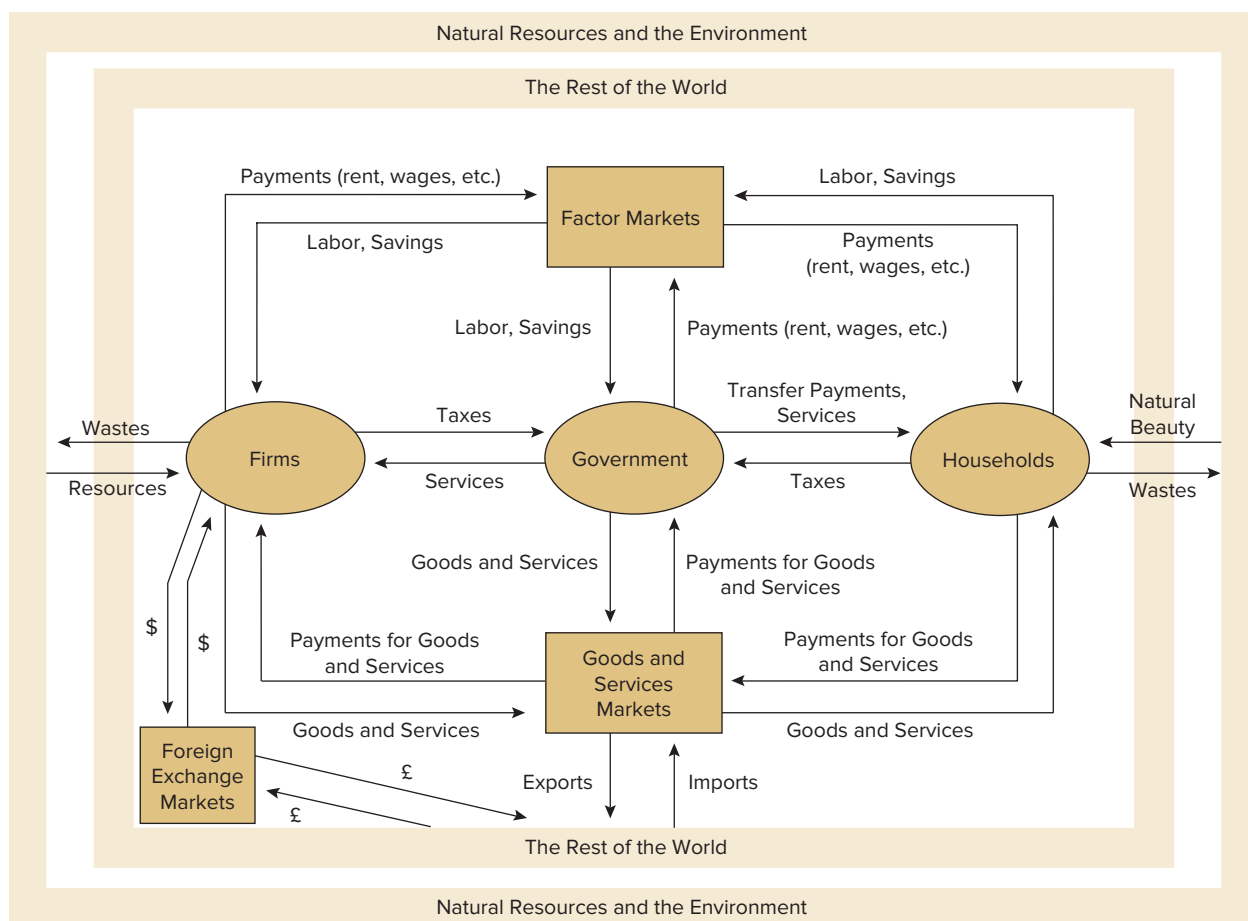

The Big Picture

circular flow model

A model that depicts the interactions of all economic actors.

Now that we have looked at our first “simplified” model of the economy, it’s time to get an idea of the “Big Picture.” Think of Figure 1.8 as your road map to the book. This circular flow model is designed to put all of the pieces that follow in perspective. It has firms, workers, investors, savers, buyers, and sellers all interacting in markets and dealing with government. It

FIGURE 1.8 The Circular Flow Model.

market

Any mechanism by which buyers and sellers negotiate an exchange.

factor market

A mechanism by which buyers and sellers of labor and financial capital negotiate an exchange.

foreign exchange market

A mechanism by which buyers and sellers of the currencies of various countries negotiate an exchange.

goods and services market

A mechanism by which buyers and sellers of goods and services negotiate an exchange.

has humanity taking natural resources from the environment, combining them with domestic and foreign financial and human resources to produce goods and services, and then buying and selling those goods and services in domestic and foreign markets.

Circular Flow Model: A Model That Shows the Interactions of All Economic Actors

The ovals in the diagram represent entities of specific kinds: There are households, firms, and governments. Households provide labor for wages. They use those wages to buy goods and services and pay their taxes. They receive services from government. Some save, some borrow, and many do both. Firms provide wages to households and pay taxes to government while getting labor from their workers and services from the government.

The rectangles in the diagram represent markets of various kinds: There are factor markets, foreign exchange markets, and goods and services markets. Factor markets are where workers and firms, and borrowers and savers interact to set wages and interest rates. Foreign exchange markets are where holders of various currencies interact to facilitate international trade. Goods and services markets are where consumers and producers interact to negotiate exchange of goods like cars, and services like dry cleaning.

Surrounding the whole thing are “The Rest of the World” and “Natural Resources and the Environment.” The former allows us to explicitly think about foreign trade and foreign exchange while the latter lets us think about the use of natural resources and the implications of economic activity on the environment.

Thinking Economically

Marginal Analysis

One of the central tools of economics is marginal analysis. Economists typically look at problems by analyzing the costs and benefits of various solutions. When people buy something, they have to compare the value of what they purchase to the value of what they give up. When companies produce goods for sale, they have to compare the money they generate from sales to the costs they will incur from the production process. When you clean up your dorm room, you weigh the cleanliness gained against the time required to clean it.

Economists generally make an optimization assumption. This is an assumption that suggests that the person in question is trying to maximize some objective. For example, consumers are assumed to be making decisions that maximize their happiness subject to a scarce amount of money. Companies are assumed to maximize profits. People are assumed to clean things until the benefits of cleaning more are not worth the time or effort.

Economists see that all of these problems can be looked at using the same framework. Economists compare the marginal benefit of an action with its marginal cost. Something is worth doing only if the increase in benefits equals or exceeds the increase in costs. If the marginal benefit of an action steadily decreases and the marginal cost of an action steadily increases, then a person maximizes net benefit by doing that action until the marginal benefit equals the marginal cost. This is the essence of marginal analysis, and we will see it in action throughout this book.

Positive and Normative Analysis

When people look at the world they often see things as they are and compare the way things are to the way they think things should be. They see a major league shortstop sign a contract for a quarter of a billion dollars over 10 years while their high school teachers make optimization assumption

An assumption that suggests that the person in question is trying to maximize some objective.

marginal benefit

The increase in the benefit that results from an action.

marginal cost

The increase in the cost that results from an action.

net benefit

The difference between all benefits and all costs.

positive analysis

A form of analysis that seeks to understand the way things are and why they are that way.

normative analysis

A form of analysis that seeks to understand the way things should be.

incentives

Something that influences a decision we make.

fallacy of composition

The mistake in logic that suggests that the total economic impact of something is always and simply equal to the sum of the individual parts.

less than $40,000 a year. Economists, and social scientists in general, distinguish views of “the way things are” from “the way things should be,” calling the former positive analysis and the latter normative analysis. Although there are economists who utilize both forms of analysis, more economists are comfortable explaining why things are the way they are than are comfortable suggesting the way things should be. Some critics look at this as self-delusion on the part of economists, using the argument that we choose which information to weigh more heavily based on normative beliefs.

Economic Incentives

What kinds of choices we make as individuals and as a society depend on our preferences. Returning to the soda and pizza example, whether we like soda or pizza, or in what combinations we most like them, will have an important impact on what we choose to produce and consume. But also high on the list of things that determine what combinations of things we will produce and consume are incentives. Something is an incentive if it influences a decision we make. Some incentives are part of a market, like prices. Others are put on by an outside force like a government, and they can positively reinforce behaviors that are desired or deter behaviors that are not. What this means is that you are still able to produce and consume what you want, but something—perhaps a tax or a government regulation—is encouraging a particular choice. For example, by taxing beer and not soda, the government encourages you to steer toward soda and away from beer.

On a deeper level, an incentive may motivate you to do something you would not ordinarily do. For instance, many incentives are offered in the tax system. Tax credits and deductions for college tuition are considered incentives that will persuade people to get an education. For many people who would go to college anyway, these are not incentives. However, to some people who were perhaps considering college but had not made a decision, any influence these tax benefits would have on the decision would constitute an incentive.

An important and sometimes unfortunate aspect of incentives is that they create unintended consequences. Taxes are an area where some argue that the unintended consequences can be predicted from the incentives that arise out of programs. If welfare payments were reduced when the recipient found part-time employment, some predict the result that the recipient would not look for part-time employment.

Fallacy of Composition

One of the key traps to thinking economically is assuming that the total economic impact of something is always and simply equal to the sum of the individual parts. The fallacy of composition is an important logical trap to avoid because invalid economic conclusions will inevitably be drawn.

Outside of economics, cake constitutes a famous illustration of why the fallacy of composition is just that—a fallacy. Imagine a cake. Now imagine the ingredients that go into making the cake. Imagine eating the cake and the satisfaction you get from that. Now compare that level of satisfaction to what you would have if you separately poured flour, sugar, and baking powder down your throat, washed it down with a couple of raw eggs and some cooking oil, and then stuck your head in an oven. The baked combination is obviously better than its individual parts.

As an example within economics, we will learn in Chapter 5 that when many farmers are making high profits, others will want to join in. If they do join in, will all of the old and new farmers be making high profits? We will see that the new farmers’ extra production will ultimately drive prices down so far that neither the older nor the newer farmers make money.