

EIGHTH EDITION

EXPERIENCING THE WORLD'S RELIGIONS

Tradition, Challenge, and Change

Mc
Graw
Hill

MICHAEL MOLLOY

Experiencing the World's Religions

EIGHTH EDITION

Experiencing the World's Religions

TRADITION, CHALLENGE, AND CHANGE

Michael Molloy

Mc
Graw
Hill

EXPERIENCING THE WORLD'S RELIGIONS: TRADITION, CHALLENGE AND CHANGE, EIGHTH EDITION

Published by McGraw-Hill Education, 2 Penn Plaza, New York, NY 10121. Copyright © 2021 by Michael Vincent Molloy. All rights reserved. Printed in the United States of America. Previous editions © 2018, 2013, and 2010. No part of this publication may be reproduced or distributed in any form or by any means, or stored in a database or retrieval system, without the prior written consent of McGraw-Hill Education, including, but not limited to, in any network or other electronic storage or transmission, or broadcast for distance learning.

Some ancillaries, including electronic and print components, may not be available to customers outside the United States.

This book is printed on acid-free paper.

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 LCR 24 23 22 21 20

ISBN 978-1-260-81376-0 (bound edition)

MHID 1-260-81376-2 (bound edition)

ISBN 978-1-260-25351-1 (loose-leaf edition)

MHID 1-260-25351-1 (loose-leaf edition)

Portfolio Manager: Erika Lo

Marketing Manager: Nancy Baudean

Content Project Manager: Danielle Clement

Buyer: Susan K. Culbertson

Design: David Hash

Content Licensing Specialist: Traci Vaske

Cover Image: www.johnbarwood.com/Getty Images

Compositor: SPi Global

All credits appearing on page or at the end of the book are considered to be an extension of the copyright page.

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Names: Molloy, Michael, 1942- author.

Title: Experiencing the world's religions : tradition, challenge, and change / Michael Molloy.

Description: Eighth edition. | New York, NY : McGraw-Hill Education, 2020.

| Includes bibliographical references and index. | Audience: Ages 18+

Identifiers: LCCN 2019044800 (print) | LCCN 2019044801 (ebook) |

ISBN 9781260813760 (bound edition : acid-free paper) | ISBN 9781260253511

(loose-leaf edition : acid-free paper) | ISBN 9781260813746 (ebook)

Subjects: LCSH: Religions—Textbooks.

Classification: LCC BL80.3 .M65 2020 (print) | LCC BL80.3 (ebook) | DDC 200—dc23

LC record available at <https://lcn.loc.gov/2019044800>

LC ebook record available at <https://lcn.loc.gov/2019044801>

The Internet addresses listed in the text were accurate at the time of publication. The inclusion of a website does not indicate an endorsement by the authors or McGraw-Hill Education, and McGraw-Hill Education does not guarantee the accuracy of the information presented at these sites.

mheducation.com/highered

About the Author

Michael Molloy has made the study of religion his life's work. Fascination with religion began with interest in the architecture of temples, mosques, churches, and shrines. Experience of ceremonies at those places led to love of religious music and art. In his early graduate work, he focused on the imagery of cloud and darkness in mystical literature. In his doctoral work, he examined the mystical thought of Aldous Huxley, after Huxley had been influenced by Hinduism and Mahayana Buddhism. To do this, he interviewed Huxley's wife Laura, Huxley's sister-in-law, and friends of Huxley.

Molloy received a grant from the East-West Center in Hawai'i to study there, and he received his doctorate from the University of Hawai'i. During this time, he studied in Japan with Abe Masao in Kyoto and with Sobharani Basu at Banaras Hindu University in Varanasi. He practiced Zen meditation at Bushinji in Shikoku and later received a certificate from the Omoto School of Traditional Japanese Arts in Kameoka, Japan. He has written Experiencing the World's Religions (McGraw-Hill) and The Christian Experience (Bloomsbury). Currently he is writing a memoir of his grandparents and parents and their religious background.

Molloy has taught many philosophy and religion courses, including World Religions, Asian Philosophies, Western Mysticism, Greek and Roman Philosophy, Ethics, Nietzsche, Religion and the Meaning of Existence, and Indian Philosophy. He is a Professor Emeritus of the University of Hawai'i. To complement his academic work, he has had three exhibitions of his paintings—"Landscapes of the Mind," "Luminous Darkness," and "Renaissance." He codirected two radio series of interviews with musicians, writers, and artists on KAIM-FM and Hawai'i Public Radio. He worked on the Inari Shrine Preservation Committee to move the shrine to a new location and then to renovate it.

To Jennie Meyer and Linming Qiu

Contents

Preface xviii

Nuttawut Uttamaharad/
Shutterstock

1 Understanding Religion 3

FIRST ENCOUNTER	3
What Is Religion?	4
Key Characteristics of Religion	5
The Sacred	6
Religious Symbolism	7
Speculations on the Sources of Religions	9
Patterns among Religions	13
First Pattern: Views of the World and Life	13
Second Pattern: Focus of Beliefs and Practices	15
Third Pattern: Views of Male and Female	16
Multidisciplinary Approaches to the Study of Religion	19
The Study of Religion	21
Recent Theories	22
Key Critical Issues	24
Why Study the Major Religions of the World?	25
The Journey	28
Reading: The Warmth and Light of Fire	28

2 Indigenous Religions 33

FIRST ENCOUNTER	33
Discovering Indigenous Religions	35
Past Obstacles to the Appreciation of Indigenous Religions	36
The Modern Recovery of Indigenous Religions	36
Studying Indigenous Religions: Learning from Patterns	39
Human Relationships with the Natural World	39
Sacred Time and Sacred Space	42
Respect for Origins, Gods, and Ancestors	43

Jim Wiltschko/iStock/
Getty Images

Sacred Practices in Indigenous Religions	47
Life-Cycle Ceremonies	47
Taboo and Sacrifice	51
Shamanism, Trance, and Spiritual Powers	55
Artifacts and Artistic Expression in Indigenous Religions	59
Personal Experience: Meeting Maori People	61
Indigenous Religions Today	63
Reading: Lame Deer's Calling	67

3 Hinduism 73

FIRST ENCOUNTER	73
The Origins of Hinduism	74
The Earliest Stage of Indian Religion	76
The Religion of the Vedic Period	77
The Vedas	79
The Upanishads and the Axis Age	79
The Origin of the Upanishads	80
Important Concepts of the Upanishads	80
Living Spiritually in the Everyday World	84
The Bhagavad Gita	85
The Caste System	86
The Stages of Life	87
The Goals of Life	88
The Yogas	88
Devotional Hinduism	92
The Trimurti: Brahma, Vishnu, and Shiva	93
Worship of the Divine Feminine: Devi	96
The Guru as Object of Devotion	98
Devotion to Animals	99
Other Forms of Religious Devotion	100
Personal Experience: A Visit to the Self-Realization Fellowship Lake Shrine Temple	101
Hinduism and the Arts	102

Thomas Hilgers

Hinduism: Modern Challenges	105
Mohandas Gandhi	106
Contemporary Issues	108
Hindu Influence beyond India	111
Reading: Spiritual Greatness	113

Manfred Thürig/Alamy Stock
Photo

4 Buddhism 119

FIRST ENCOUNTER	119
The Beginnings of Buddhism: The Life of the Buddha	120
The Basic Teachings of Buddhism	125
The Three Marks of Reality	126
The Four Noble Truths and the Noble Eightfold Path	128
The Influence of Indian Thought on Early Buddhist Teachings	130
Ahimsa: “Do No Harm”	131
The Soul and Karma	131
Nirvana	132
The Early Development of Buddhism	132
Theravada Buddhism: The Way of the Elders	135
Theravada Teachings and Literature	140
Theravada Art and Architecture	140
Mahayana Buddhism: The “Big Vehicle”	140
New Ideals: Compassion and the Bodhisattva	142
Mahayana Thought and Worldview	143
Mahayana Literature	146
The Spread of Mahayana in East Asia	148
Some Major Schools of Mahayana	150
Vajrayana Buddhism: The “Diamond Vehicle”	158
Origins, Practice, and Literature of Vajrayana Buddhism	158
Ritual and the Arts	160
Personal Experience: New Year’s Day at Wat Saket	162
Buddhism and the Modern World	165
Reading: The Wonder of Tea	170

5 Jainism and Sikhism 175

FIRST ENCOUNTER	175
Shared Origins	176
Jainism	177
Background	177
Mahavira and the Origins of Jainism	178
Worldview	180
Jain Ethics	181
The Development of Jainism and Its Branches	183
Digambaras	184
Shvetambaras	184
Sthanakavasis	184
Terapanthis	185
Jain Practices	185
Jain Scriptures	186
Jain Art and Architecture	186
Sikhism	187
Background	187
Nanak and the Origins of Sikhism	187
The Worldview and Teachings of Nanak	189
The Development of Sikhism	189
Sikh Scriptures	190
Sikhism and the Modern World	192
Personal Experience: A Visit to the Golden Temple	193
Reading: God is Found in Every Direction	195

Dinodia Photo/Corbis NX/
Getty Images

6 Daoism and Confucianism 199

FIRST ENCOUNTER	199
Basic Elements of Traditional Chinese Beliefs	200
Daoism	203
The Origins of Daoism	203
Laozi (Lao Tzu)	204

Xinhua/Alamy Stock Photo

The Daodejing	204
Zhuangzi (Chuang Tzu)	208
Basic Early Teachings	209
Daoism and the Quest for Longevity	210
The Development of Daoism	211
Daoism and the Arts	214
Daoism and the Modern World	217
Confucianism	219
The Dao in Confucianism	219
The Life of Confucius	219
Living According to Confucian Values	220
The Five Great Relationships	222
The Confucian Virtues	225
Confucian Literature	227
The Development of Confucianism	229
Schools of Philosophy	229
The Development of Confucianism as a Religious System	231
Confucianism and the Arts	234
Personal Experience: Qing Ming, a Ceremony in Spring	235
Confucianism and the Modern World	237
Reading: On Cloud-like Wandering	240

Yoshikazu Tsuno/AFP/
Getty Images

7 Shinto 245

FIRST ENCOUNTER	245
The Origins of Shinto	246
The Historical Development of Shinto	249
Accommodation with Buddhism and Confucianism	249
Shinto and Japanese National Identity	251
Essentials of Shinto Belief	252
Shinto Religious Practice	254
Worship at Shrines	254
Celebration of the New Year	256

Observances of the Seasons and Nature	257
Other Practices	258
Personal Experience: An Unexpected Shrine	259
Shinto and the Arts	259
Architecture	260
Music and Dance	261
Shinto Offshoots: The New Religions	261
Shinto and the Modern World	264
Reading: The Heian Shrines at Nikko	265

8 Judaism 271

FIRST ENCOUNTER	271
An Overview of Jewish History	272
The Hebrew Bible	275
Biblical History	277
In the Beginning: Stories of Origins	277
The World of the Patriarchs and Matriarchs	279
Moses and the Law	282
The Judges and Kings	287
Exile and Captivity	288
Return to Jerusalem and the Second Temple	290
Cultural Conflict during the Second Temple Era	291
The Seleucid Period	291
Responses to Outside Influences	292
The Development of Rabbinical Judaism	293
The Canon of Scripture and the Talmud	293
Islam and Medieval Judaism	294
The Kabbalah	295
Christianity and Medieval Judaism	296
Questioning and Reform	297
Judaism and the Modern World	298
Hitler and the Holocaust	298
Creation of the State of Israel	300

Gali Tibbon/AFP/Getty Images

Personal Experience: A Visit to a Kibbutz in the North	300
Jewish Belief	301
Religious Practice	302
The Jewish Sabbath	302
Holy Days	304
Jewish Dietary Practices	305
Other Religious Practices	306
Divisions within Contemporary Judaism	308
Culturally Based Divisions	308
Sephardic Jews	308
Ashkenazic Jews	308
Other Jewish Cultures	309
Observance-Based Divisions	309
Jewish Identity and the Future of Judaism	312
Reading: Liberation	314

Ahmed Abdelfattah/picture alliance/Getty Images

9 Christianity 319

FIRST ENCOUNTER	319
The Life and Teachings of Jesus	322
Jesus in the New Testament Gospels	324
The Two Great Commandments	327
Early Christian Beliefs and History	328
Paul and Pauline Christianity	329
The New Testament: Its Structure and Artistry	331
The Christian Canon	336
The Early Spread of Christianity	337
Influences on Christianity at the End of the Roman Empire	341
Augustine	341
Benedict and the Monastic Ideal	342
The Eastern Orthodox Church	344
Early Development	344
Monasticism in the Eastern Church	345
Eastern Orthodox Beliefs	346
Personal Experience: Mar Saba Monastery	348

Christianity in the Middle Ages	350
Christian Mysticism	351
The Crusades, the Inquisition, and Christian Control	352
The Late Middle Ages	353
The Protestant Reformation	354
Martin Luther	354
Forms of Protestantism	356
The Development of Christianity Following the Protestant Reformation	360
The Catholic Reformation (Counter-Reformation)	360
The International Spread of Christianity	361
Nontraditional Christianity	363
Christian Practice	368
Sacraments and Other Rituals	368
The Christian Year	370
Devotion to Mary	372
Christianity and the Arts	374
Architecture	374
Art	376
Music	376
Christianity Faces the Modern World	379
The Challenges of Science and Secularism	379
Contemporary Influences and Developments	379
Reading: Discovering the Next Step	382

10 Islam 389

FIRST ENCOUNTER	389
The Life and Teachings of Muhammad	391
Essentials of Islam	395
The Five Pillars of Islam	397
Additional Islamic Religious Practice	405
Scripture: The Qur'an	406
The Historical Development of Islam	409
Expansion and Consolidation	409
The Shiite and Sunni Division within Islam	412

Leon Tan/Alamy Stock Photo

Sufism: Islamic Mysticism	417
Sufi Beliefs	417
Al-Ghazali and Sufi Brotherhoods	421
Sufi Practice and Poetry	422
Personal Experience: Visit to a Mosque	423
Islamic Law and Philosophy	424
Islamic Law and Legal Institutions	425
Islamic Philosophy and Theology	425
Islam and the Arts	427
Architecture	427
Fine Art	429
Islam and the Modern World	433
Islam and Contemporary Life	433
Islam and the Roles of Women	433
The Challenge of Secularism	435
A Range of Solutions	436
Islam in the West and Beyond	438
Reading: The Most High	444

Godong/Universal Images
Group/Getty Images

11 Alternative Paths 449

FIRST ENCOUNTER	449
Origins of New Religions	450
Contemporary Paganism: Wicca and Druidism	451
Religions of the Yoruba Tradition: Santería, Voodoo, and Candomblé	456
Theosophy	459
Scientology	461
Cao Dai	463
Rastafarianism	465
Baha'i	468
Parody Religions	471
Humanism	472
New Religious Movements: A Special Role	472
Personal Experience: Celebrating the Goddess	473
Reading: Meditating on the Earth	475

12 The Modern Search 481

FIRST ENCOUNTER	481
Modern Influences on the Future of Religion	483
The New World Order	484
Multiculturalism and Interfaith Dialogue	485
Women's Rights Movements	486
Reassessment of Human Sexuality	487
Science and Technology	488
Science and Ethical Issues	489
Secularism	491
Environmental Challenges	492
The Recurring Challenges of Change	494
Environmentalism: A Religious Phenomenon?	496
Eclectic Spirituality	499
Interrelatedness	501
Reverence and Respect	502
Contemplative Practices	503
Personal Experience: An Unexpected Meeting	505
Reading: Climbing Center Mountain	507
Answer Key	A-1
Index	I-1

mammuth/iStock/Getty Images

Preface

Not long ago, most towns and cities had restaurants with the same kinds of food, and there was little choice, except for the decor. Now you find not only Chinese food, but also Italian, French, Mexican, Greek, Japanese, Indian, Vegetarian, Vietnamese, and Thai. In even larger cities, the possibilities expand like a waistline—even to Moroccan and Ethiopian.

The same thing is happening in our experience of religions. We encounter other religions effortlessly. I realized this when I had arrived by plane in Denver. I took a taxi from the airport to my hotel downtown. As I got in the taxi, I noticed what looked like a religious book on the passenger seat, next to the driver. As we were driving into town, I asked the driver about it.

“It is an Ethiopian book on the Psalms,” he said. “I am using it for my own study of the Bible.”

“Do you go to church here in Denver?” I asked.

“Oh, yes. I go to one church in particular, since it is in my neighborhood. But there are several Ethiopian churches in the city.”

This was a surprise to me. I had no idea that there were a good number of Ethiopians in Denver.

“Would you like to come to our service this weekend?” he asked.

“I would love to do that. Please write down the name of your church, its address, and the time of the service, and I’ll be there.”

And so it happened that I took part in a service where women and men sat on opposite sides of the church, the altar area was hidden behind veils, and everyone wore white clothes. During the time there, an altar server carried around a gospel book, which each person kissed reverently. No one wore shoes. After the service, people put their shoes back on, gathering them from just outside the doors. They did not immediately drive home, but congregated instead under the nearby trees, where they talked with their relatives and friends.

The taxi driver saw me and waved. He looked deeply pleased that I had come to his church.

As I drove back to my hotel, I thought about the future. Would the children and grandchildren of these Ethiopian Christians continue their traditions, or would they mix them with other religious traditions in the city? Changes are inevitable, as the cover of this book suggests. Flowing water moves and cleanses but does not stay the same.

This book is meant to help you find, learn about, and experience some of the religions that we nowadays find flourishing—and changing—all around us.

Boxed Features

CONFLICT IN RELIGION

Religious Blends	23
Kamikaze Pilots and Shinto	252
Sunni versus Shiite: Why the Conflict?	439
Jihad and the Modern World	443
Religions, Sacred Texts, and Violence	493

CONTEMPORARY ISSUES

Halloween: “Just Good Fun” or Folk Religion?	65
The Green Movement: A New Global Indigenous Religion?	66
The Chipko Movement	109
Pema Chödrön	166
Environmental Buddhism	168
The Confucius Institutes	238
Eco-Judaism	312
Martin Luther King Jr.	364
Creation Care	382
Islamic Ecology	441
“Cults,” “Sects,” and “New Religious Movements”	451
Ecology and the New Religious Movements	461
The Rizalista Movement	468
Religion and Pop Culture	500

RITUALS AND CELEBRATIONS

Travel and Pilgrimage	27
The Vision Quest	51
Hindu Meditation: More Than Emptying the Mind	90
Hindu Celebrations	101
Buddhist Festivals	149
Buddhist Meditation	164
The Mass	378
The Islamic Religious Calendar: Festivals and Holy Days	404
The Contemporary Pagan Year	453

DEEPER INSIGHTS

Multiple Images of the Female	17
Do Religions Oppose Science?	24
Australian Aboriginal Religion	40
Religion of the Pueblo Peoples	44
The Igbo: An Indigenous Religion in Transition	50
Traditional Hawaiian Religion	53
Traditional Maori Religion	56
Isaac Tens Becomes a Shaman	57
Bollywood	104
Buddhism in Thailand	138
The Mustard Seeds	139
Buddhism and Japanese Arts	155
Jains and a Holy Death	182
The Five “K’s” of the Sikh Khalsa	191
Sikhs and the Turban	193
The Seasons of Life	207
The Chinese Garden—Bridge to the Infinite	213
Daoism and Nature	218
The Ideal Human Being	221
The Five Classics and the Four Books	228
The Inari Shrine	255
Shinto and Nature	264
Books of the Hebrew Bible	276
The Gods of Egypt	285
The Ten Commandments	289
What’s in a Name?	303
The Christian System of Chronology: BC and AD	321
The Books of the New Testament	332
The Christian Worldview	336
Greek and Roman Religions and Early Christianity	339
Inside a Greek Orthodox Church	347
Focuses of Protestant Christianity	356
Focuses of Catholic Christianity	361
Examples of Nontraditional Christianity	366
Signs and Symbols	371
Color Symbolism	372
Zoroastrianism	418
The Meaning of Muslim Names	422
Major Orishas of Santeria	458

Changes in the Eighth Edition

Although the core of religions remains fairly constant, change is always happening. Followers of different religions split and form new branches, religious values change, new leaders arise. These transitions are reflected in the new edition. New reading selections have been added to most chapters.

NEW TO THE EIGHTH EDITION

Chapter 1, Understanding Religion

- New First Encounter
- New Reading: “The Warmth and Light of Fire”

Chapter 2, Indigenous Religions

- New Reading: “Lame Deer’s Calling”

Chapter 3, Hinduism

- New First Encounter
- New Text Box: Bollywood
- New Reading: “Spiritual Greatness”

Chapter 4, Buddhism

- New First Encounter
- New Text Box: “The Mustard Seeds”
- New Reading: “The Wonder of Tea”

Chapter 5, Jainism and Sikhism

- New Reading: “God Is Found in Every Direction”

Chapter 6, Daoism and Confucianism

- New First Encounter

Chapter 7, Shinto

- New First Encounter
- New Reading: “The Heian Shrines at Nikko”

Chapter 8, Judaism

- New Personal Experience: “A Visit to a Kibbutz in the North”
- New Reading: “Liberation”

Chapter 9, Christianity

- New Reading: “Discovering the Next Step”

Chapter 10, Islam

- New Reading: “Most High”

Chapter 11, Alternative Paths

- New Section: “Parody Religions”
- New Reading: “Meditating on the Earth”

Chapter 12, The Modern Search

- New First Encounter
New Personal Experience: “An Unexpected Meeting”
- New Reading: “Climbing Center Mountain”

The eighth edition of Experiencing the World's Religions: Tradition, Challenge, and Change is now available online with Connect, McGraw-Hill's integrated assignment and assessment platform. Connect also offers SmartBook 2.0 for the new edition, which is the first adaptive reading experience proven to improve grades and help students study more effectively. All of the title's website and ancillary content is also available through Connect, including:

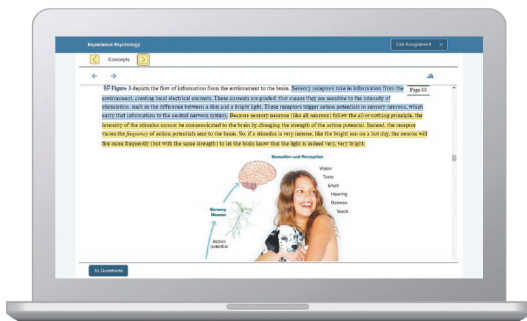

- A full Test Bank of multiple-choice questions that test students on central concepts and ideas in each chapter.
- An Instructor's Manual for each chapter with full chapter outlines, sample test questions, and discussion topics.
- Lecture Slides for instructor use in class.

FOR INSTRUCTORS

You're in the driver's seat.

Want to build your own course? No problem. Prefer to use our turnkey, prebuilt course? Easy. Want to make changes throughout the semester? Sure. And you'll save time with Connect's auto-grading too.

Laptop: McGraw-Hill; Woman/dog: George Doyle/Getty Images

65%

Less Time
Grading

They'll thank you for it.

Adaptive study resources like SmartBook® 2.0 help your students be better prepared in less time. You can transform your class time from dull definitions to dynamic debates. Find out more about the powerful personalized learning experience available in SmartBook 2.0 at www.mheducation.com/highered/connect/smartbook make it affordable.

Make it simple,

Connect makes it easy with seamless integration using any of the major Learning Management Systems—Blackboard®, Canvas, and D2L, among others—to let you organize your course in one convenient location. Give your students access to digital materials at a discount with our inclusive access program. Ask your McGraw-Hill representative for more information.

Padlock: Jobalou/Getty Images

Solutions for your challenges.

A product isn't a solution. Real solutions are affordable, reliable, and come with training and ongoing support when you need it and how you want it. Our Customer Experience Group can also help you troubleshoot tech problems—although Connect's 99% uptime means you might not need to call them. See for yourself at status.mheducation.com

Checkmark: Jobalou/Getty Images

SUPPORT ^{AT} every step

FOR STUDENTS

Effective, efficient studying.

Connect helps you be more productive with your study time and get better grades using tools like SmartBook 2.0, which highlights key concepts and creates a personalized study plan. Connect sets you up for success, so you walk into class with confidence and walk out with better grades.

Study anytime, anywhere.

Download the free ReadAnywhere app and access your online eBook or SmartBook 2.0 assignments when it's convenient, even if you're offline. And since the app automatically syncs with your eBook and SmartBook 2.0 assignments in Connect, all of your work is available every time you open it. Find out more at www.mheducation.com/readanywhere

"I really liked this app—it made it easy to study when you don't have your textbook in front of you."

- Jordan Cunningham,
Eastern Washington University

Calendar: owattaphotos/Getty Images

No surprises.

The Connect Calendar and Reports tools keep you on track with the work you need to get done and your assignment scores. Life gets busy; Connect tools help you keep learning through it all.

Learning for everyone.

McGraw-Hill works directly with Accessibility Services Departments and faculty to meet the learning needs of all students. Please contact your Accessibility Services office and ask them to email accessibility@mheducation.com, or visit www.mheducation.com/about/accessibility for more information.

Top: Jenner Images/Getty Images, Left: Hero Images/Getty Images, Right: Hero Images/Getty Images

Acknowledgments

We are all the product of kindness and insight shared with us by others. When I look back on the people of the religions and cultures that shaped me, I feel amazement and am full of gratitude. In some cases, though, I feel apologetic. At the time when I was receiving the gifts from these people, I was often not aware of the quality of the gifts and the generosity of the givers. One example will illustrate this. In high school I took a Latin course. The teacher, who loved to travel, had just been to Rome. One day, instead of teaching the regular material, he spent the time projecting large photos of the Roman Forum and he talked with enthusiasm about the Roman Empire. He said that it had spread roads, bridges, aqueducts, architectural patterns, law, writing, and ideas to as far away as Britain, Syria, and Egypt. Behind my hand, I yawned. Years later, though, I stood in the Roman Forum under a ceremonial arch. I looked at the stone road underneath my feet and the pillars around me. I remembered that teacher and that class. At last, I understood the lesson.

Another example occurred in Asia. My teacher in Japan arranged for me to live for a while in a Zen Buddhist temple in Shikoku. It was headed by a middle-aged monk with kind eyes and a brilliant smile. We meditated every morning before breakfast and every evening after supper. During the daytime, I cleaned the temple floors, moved rocks, and planted trees. The food was vegetarian, and we had a rough and unfussy tea ceremony every day after lunch. At night, I slept in the meditation hall, in the same place where I meditated. The large doors at each end of the hall were kept open all night.

To keep me warm, I was given two white comforters to use as blankets. They were so short, though, that I had to cover the top part of my body with one comforter, and the lower part of my body with the other. Every night, though, they came apart and the middle part of my body froze with cold.

After a few weeks, I told the monk that I had to leave. He looked shocked.

“Don’t go. I can tell that you are the type.”

“What do you mean?” I asked.

He answered with a soulful look in his eyes. “If you stay here just ten years, I guarantee that you will reach enlightenment.”

I thought to myself that, from his way of viewing life, this was a great compliment. I was tempted to say, “But in ten years I will have frozen to death.” I stayed silent.

“Is there something wrong here?” he asked.

“No,” I answered. “It has been wonderful, and so have you.” Then I added, “But I must go. You see, the whole world is my temple.”

He smiled and nodded that he understood.

To him I now apologize.

Thanks are due to some exceptional teachers. Among them have been Rev. Arthur Daspit, Dr. Jerome Theisen, Dr. Sobharani Basu, Dr. Winfield Nagley, and Dr. Eliot Deutsch. Because a book is not by a single person but is more like a quilt with many parts, thanks go to the development team at Lumina Datamatics, Inc. led by editor Mel Stafford and the production team at SPi Global, led by Mithun Kothandath; to my photo researchers, Emily Tietz and Traci Vaske; and to Dr. Thomas Hilgers, who provided many unique photos. Also, thanks go to the team at McGraw-Hill Education; to the Portfolio Manager, Erika Lo; and to the Sr. Content Project Manager, Danielle Clement.

I am grateful to a multitude of colleagues and reviewers:

REVIEWERS

Amanda Hayden
 Andreas Reif
 Brandon Cleworth
 Carolyn M. Jones
 Catherine Alvarez
 Charlene Burns
 Chris Brawley
 Christopher Martinez
 Curtis Smith
 Dan Campbell
 Daniel McFee
 Debbie Thompson
 Don Aycock
 Fotini Katsanos
 Jeff Christ
 Jonathan Ebel
 Karen L. Hornsby
 Lori Stewart
 Mathias Warnes
 Michael Mackey
 Micki Pulleyking
 Peter Feldmeier
 Peter Vethanyagamony
 Sharma Dammar
 Stephen C. Finley
 Steve Godby
 Steven D. Meigs
 Steven Fink
 Steven Zusman
 Suzanne Jacobs
 Tim Cannon
 Vanda Bozicevic

SCHOOLS

Sinclair Community College
 Southern New Hampshire University
 Glendale Community College
 Medine University of Georgia
 University of South Florida
 University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire
 Central Piedmont Community College
 Hillsborough Community College
 Pennsylvania State University
 St. Petersburg College
 Mercyhurst University
 Ozarks Technical Community College
 St. Johns River State College
 University of North Carolina-Charlotte
 Moraine Valley Community College
 University of Illinois-Urbana-Champaign
 North Carolina A&T State University
 San Diego State University
 CSUS, Folsom Lake College, Sierra College
 Community College of Denver
 Missouri State University
 University of Toledo
 College of DuPage
 Broward College
 Louisiana State University
 Broward College
 University of South Florida
 University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire
 Waubensee Community College
 Salt Lake Community College
 Forsyth Technical Community College
 Bergen Community College

The book is far better as a result of their reviews. Although it is a truism, this book has also been influenced by hundreds of other people who are also owed my sincere thanks. They planted in me seeds that I hope have come to flower.

Nuttawut Uttamaharad/Shutterstock

CHAPTER

1

Understanding Religion

FIRST ENCOUNTER

You have heard from friends how beautiful Tahiti and the Marquesas are. One friend who was there last summer gives you some details.

“You should visit Papeete. I was there for Bastille Day on July 14. People gathered on the long mall near the ocean. There are food stalls all along the waterfront and small tables where you can sit. The stalls sell crepes filled with fruit jam, and they make thin waffles rolled with custard inside, and the people stay up all night listening to guitar music and singing. The cathedral is not far away and has some beautiful stained glass. The island of Moorea has wonderful views of the ocean. And the island of Bora Bora has one of the most beautiful volcanic mountains in the world. It is like Shangri-La. A road runs next to the ocean, and you can use it to bicycle around the island.”

“Have you been to the Marquesas, too?” you ask.

“Not yet. I hope to do it, though. I hear that the Marquesas are like what Tahiti was fifty years ago—quiet and peaceful.”

After this description, you decide to go first to the Marquesas. You take a small ship to one island, with a plan to stay there a week. Next, you will visit two more of the islands of the Marquesas and visit the tomb of the painter Gauguin. At the end of that tour, you will finally see some of the islands of Tahiti.

The first night in the Marquesas you go out walking after supper. Beyond the small town and its few lights, darkness is intense. You are overcome by the beauty and great number of stars overhead. Turning around, you almost lose your balance. You sit down under a palm tree in order to enjoy the sight. You sit with your back against the tree trunk. The sky is bright blue-black—but so dark that all you see is stars. The only thing close to you is one branch of the palm tree. The branch hangs down in front of you, blocking out some stars. It is a silhouette—a completely black palm branch in front of a starry sky. You stay for an hour, looking in all directions, entranced.

Vincent van Gogh's Café Terrace at Night offers a startling perspective. The world of everyday human life goes on against the background of a vast, starry cosmos.

Universal History Archive/
Universal Images Group/Getty
Images

WHAT IS RELIGION?

The painting Café Terrace at Night depicts an outdoor café in the evening. About a dozen small round tables stand on an outdoor porch, facing the street. Customers sit at a few of the tables, while most tables are empty. At the back, a waiter in a long white apron stands ready to help. A few passersby walk in the cobblestone street. It is an ordinary evening. Overhead, though, the dark blue sky is crowded with luminous stars. Your eye is immediately drawn to them. Four or five of the stars are so large that they make you think that they seem like flying saucers that come from another world. On this ordinary night, the real world is above.

Painted near the end of its creator's life, the work summarizes the vision of Vincent van Gogh (1853–1890). Van Gogh was an intensely religious man who had planned to be an ordained minister in the Dutch Reformed Church, as was his father. But he struggled with his studies and had a falling-out with church authorities. For a time, he lived as a lay preacher, working with poor miners. When he was 27, his brother Theo, an art dealer, encouraged him to take up painting. Vincent did this with great energy.

Despite this new career in painting, van Gogh continued to think of himself as a minister. If he could not preach in words, he would preach in pictures. His subjects were the simple things of life: trees, sunflowers, a wicker chair, a bridge, his postman, a farmer sowing seeds, peasants eating a meal, workers bringing in the harvest. His paintings express a quiet awe before the wonder that he sensed in everyday objects and ordinary people. It was his special sense of the sacredness he saw all around him that he wanted to share. Almost as a reminder, in Café Terrace at Night, van Gogh painted the simple activity of the town, but with his attention on the stars. The heavenly realm illuminates van Gogh's vision of the sacred character of the entire world.

Key Characteristics of Religion

When people begin their study of religions, they bring ideas from the religion in which they were raised or from the predominant religion of their society. They may assume, for example, that every religion has a sacred book or that it worships a divine being or that it has a set of commandments. Indeed, many religions do share all of these characteristics, but some do not. Shinto, for example, does not have a set of commandments, nor does it preach a moral code; Zen Buddhism does not worship a divine being; and many tribal religions have no written sacred scripture. Nevertheless, we call them all religions. What, then—if not a common set of elements—must be present for something to be called a religion?

An obvious starting point for many scholars is to examine linguistic clues: What are the linguistic roots of the term religion? Intriguingly, the word's Latin roots are commonly thought to be re-, meaning “again,” and lig-, meaning “join” or “connect” (as in the word ligament).¹ Thus the common translation of religion is “to join again,” “to reconnect.” If this derivation is correct, then the word religion suggests the joining of our natural, human world to the sacred world. In classical Latin, the term religio meant awe for the gods and concern for proper ritual.² We must recognize, though, that the term religion arose in Western culture and may not be entirely appropriate when applied across cultures. Spiritual path, for example, might be a more fitting designation to refer to other religious systems. We will keep these things in mind when we use the long-established term religion.

People have constantly tried to define religion, and there are thus many notable attempts. These definitions may emphasize a sense of dependence on a higher power, awareness of the passing nature of life, the use of symbolism and ritual, the acceptance of moral rules, or the special structuring of time. Yet reading these definitions makes you aware of their limitations. The definitions often seem inadequate and time-bound, the product of a particular culture or period or discipline. Perhaps, for the time being, it is better simply to be open to many possible definitions, without as yet embracing any single one. After studying the major world religions, we will undoubtedly come closer to our own definition of religion.

The problem of how to define religion continues to plague scholars, who love definition. A definition may apply well to some religions, but not to others. A definition may apply to religions of the past, but may not be suitable for a religion of the present or of the future.

Traditional dictionary definitions of religion read something like this: a system of belief that involves worship of a God or gods, prayer, ritual, and a moral code. Yet there are so many exceptions to that definition that it is neither comprehensive nor accurate. So instead of saying that a religion must have certain characteristics,

Religion [is] a way of life founded upon the apprehension of sacredness in existence.

—Julian Huxley, biologist³

it is more useful to list a series of characteristics that are found in what are commonly accepted as religions. Scholars note that what we ordinarily call religions manifest to some degree the following eight elements⁴:

Belief system Several beliefs fit together into a fairly complete and systematic interpretation of the universe and the human being's place in it. This is also called a worldview.

Community The belief system is shared, and its ideals are practiced by a group.

Central myths Stories that express the religious beliefs of a group are retold and often reenacted. Examples of central myths include the major events in the life of the Hindu god Krishna, the enlightenment experience of the Buddha, the exodus of the Israelites from oppression in Egypt, the death and resurrection of Jesus, or Muhammad's escape from Mecca to Medina. Scholars call such central stories myths. The term "myth," as scholars use it, is a specialized term. It does not in itself mean (as in popular usage) that the stories are historically untrue, but means only that the stories are central to the religion.

Ritual Beliefs are enacted and made real through ceremonies.

Ethics Rules about human behavior are established. These are often viewed as having been revealed from a supernatural realm, but they can also be viewed as socially generated guidelines.

Characteristic emotional experiences Among the emotional experiences typically associated with religions are dread, guilt, awe, mystery, devotion, conversion, "rebirth," liberation, ecstasy, bliss, and inner peace.

Material expression Religions make use of an astonishing variety of physical elements—statues, paintings, musical compositions, musical instruments, ritual objects, flowers, incense, clothing, architecture, and specific places.

Sacredness A distinction is made between the sacred and the ordinary. Ceremonies often emphasize this distinction through the deliberate use of different language, clothing, and architecture. Certain objects, actions, people, and places may share in the sacredness or express it.

Each of the traditions that you will study in the pages ahead will exhibit most of these characteristics. Yet the religious traditions, like the people who practice them, will manifest the characteristics in different ways and at different times.

The Sacred

All religions are concerned with the deepest level of reality, and for most religions the core or origin of everything is sacred and mysterious. This sense of a mysterious, originating holiness is called by many names: Brahman, Dao, Great Mother, Divine Parent, Great Spirit, Ground of Being, Great Mystery, the Ultimate, the Absolute, the Divine, the Holy. People, however, experience and explain sacred reality in different ways, as you shall see in the chapters that follow.

One familiar term for the sacred reality, particularly in the Western world, is God, and monotheism is the term that means a belief in one God. In some systems, the term God often carries with it the notion of a Cosmic Person—a divine being with will and intelligence who is just and compassionate and infinite in virtues. God is also called omnipotent (“having total power over the universe”). Although God may be said to have personal aspects, all monotheistic religions agree that the reality of God is beyond all categories: God is said to be pure spirit, not fully definable in words. This notion of a powerful God, distinct from the universe, describes a sacredness that is active in the world but also distinct from it. That is, God is transcendent—unlimited by the world and all ordinary reality.

In some religions, however, the sacred reality is not viewed as having personal attributes but is more like an energy or mysterious power. Frequently, the sacred is then spoken of as something immanent within the universe. In some religions, there is a tendency to speak of the universe not just as having been created but also as a manifestation of the sacred nature itself, in which nothing is separate from the sacred. This view, called pantheism (Greek: “all divine”), sees the sacred as being discoverable within the physical world and its processes. In other words, nature itself is holy.

Some religions worship the sacred reality in the form of many coexisting gods, a view called polytheism. The multiple gods may be fairly separate entities, each in charge of an aspect of reality (such as gods of nature), or they may be multiple manifestations of the same basic sacred reality.

In recent centuries, other views have become prominent. There can be a tendency to deny the existence of any God or gods (atheism), to argue that the existence of God cannot be proven (agnosticism), or simply to take no position (nontheism). (Such tendencies are not strictly modern; they can also be found in some ancient systems, such as Jainism; see Chapter 5.) However, if one sees religion broadly, as a “spiritual path,” then even systems based on these three views—particularly if they show other typical characteristics of a religion—can also be called religions.

Religious Symbolism

Religions present views of reality, and most speak of the sacred. Nevertheless, because religions are so varied in their teachings and because the teachings of some religions, Churchgoers in Romania wait to receive a blessing from a Romanian Orthodox priest. Thomas Hilgers.

*Note: Words shown in boldface type are listed and defined in the “Key Terms” section at the end of each chapter.

when taken at face value, conflict with those of others, it is common to assert that religions express truth symbolically. A symbol is something fairly concrete, ordinary, and universal that can represent—and help human beings intensely experience—something of greater complexity. For example, water can represent spiritual cleansing; the sun, health; a mountain, strength; and a circle, eternity. It is common to find symbolism, both deliberate and unconscious, in religious art and ritual.

Symbols and their interpretation have long played an important part in analyzing dreams. It was once thought that dreams were messages from a supernatural realm and that they could provide a key to the future. Although this type of interpretation is less common nowadays, many people still think that dreams are significant. Sigmund Freud introduced his view of the dream as a door into subconscious levels of the mind. He argued that, by understanding dreams symbolically, human beings can understand their own hidden needs and fears. For example, a dream of being lost in a forest might be interpreted as distress over losing one's sense of direction in life. A dream of flying could be interpreted as a need to seek freedom.

Carl Gustav Jung extended the symbol-focused method of dream interpretation to the interpretation of religion. Some religious leaders have been cautious about this approach—popularized by the mythologist Joseph Campbell—lest everything be turned into a symbol and all literal meaning be lost. And specialists in religion oppose the view that two religions are basically the same simply because they share similar symbols.

The mandala, according to Jung, illustrates “the path to the center, to individuation.”
Nujalee/Shutterstock

